IKE, TAFT SPLIT ON KOREA POLICY

Eisenhower Says Air Force Cutback Won't Endanger U. S.

Slash Is Disputed By Ike's Nominee For Chief Of USAF

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the Air Force cutback he has proposed does not put this nation's military security in jeopardy.

The President told his news conference he can give that assurance now, but added that no one can predict with certainty just how much military strength would be enough in the event of an enemy attack.

At the same time Eisenhower was meeting with newsmen, the man he has named Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Nathan Twining, was telling a Senate committee the proposed cuts would delay the building of the kind of Air Force he considers essential for the security of the nation.

Radford Has No Opinion

At the same hearing, Adm. Arthur Radford, Eisenhower's choice for chairman of the Joint Chiefs, parried a question as to his own views on the cuts. He said he was out of the country at the time the decision was made, that he had not been consulted, and therefore has no opinion on the matter.

Many Democrats and some Republicans have assailed the cuts advanced by Eisenhower and his secretary of defense, Charles E. Wilson, arguing that they would cripple the nation's defenses.

An Air Force statement, placed in the Congressional Record by Rep. Yorty (D-Calif), said the Joint Chiefs named by former President Harry S. Truman maintain the cuts would place this nation well below the minimum strength needed to defend against a possible attack.

Senators Wanted Assurance

At a policy meeting this week, Senate Republicans decided to ask Eisenhower to give his assurance that the cuts would not cripple the nation's defenses.

Asked for comment on this, Eisenhower said he certainly could give that assurance as of this moment.

He went on to say that he and his advisers are dealing with equations in which every factor is unknown, that they have had to make estimates and live with those estimates.

Their goal, he said, is to plan a program that would give the U. S. the greatest strength in years to come that it is able to maintain.

Meanwhile, Yorty got out a new statement claiming the only "logical reason" he could find for the cuts lay in the Republicans' "now embarrassing campaign promises of something for nothing—tax reductions, a balanced budget and a better defense, all at the same time."

Senate Group OKs Ike's New Military Team

Radford Testifies He Has Modified His Views On Air Force

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower's new military team won the unanimous endorsement of the Senate Armed Services Committee today.

The committee recommended confirmation of Adm. Arthur W. Radford as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It also okayed Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as Army chief of staff, Adm. Robert B. Carney as chief of naval operations and Gen. Nathan F. Twining as Air Force chief of staff.

Senate Vote Due Next Week

The Senate is expected to vote on the appointments early next week. Eisenhower is replacing the entire high command in the Pentagon and giving the chairmanship to the Navy for the first time since the Armed Forces Unification Act went into effect in 1947.

A public hearing was held today on the appointments, and later the appointees were questioned privately by members of the committee.

Time Mellows Opposition

Radford testified that time and events had mellowed his onetime hot opposition to Air Force programs and he believed he could now serve in the impartial job of chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The days of four years ago when he denounced big bombers, "billion dollar blunders" and atomic blitz plans are past, the admiral told the committee.

"There have been developments, improvements in material and certain other changes which naturally would cause me to modify my views," he said.

The child was taken to the hospital by FBI agents who had arrested a couple and charged them with kidnaping the boy from his mother in St. Louis several weeks. "Forget U. N." Plan Rejected By President

Eisenhower Says No Free Nation Can Go It Alone And Survive

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower flatly and firmly rejected today Sen. Robert A. Taft's "forget the United Nations" proposal for Korea.

In his first major policy split with the Senate Republican leader, who fought him for the nomination a year ago but became a close adviser and golfing companion, the President told a news conference:

"If you are going to go it alone one place, you of course have to go it alone everywhere. . . . no single free nation can live alone in the world. We have to have friends."

Thus Eisenhower jerked the rug, so far as the administration is concerned, from under the Ohio senator for his Tuesday night statement that the U. S. "Might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Ike Explains Position

Taft said also, in a speech read for him at Cincinnati, that if the present negotiations don't bring an armistice this country should tell its allies "we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

Asked by a newsman today if he shared Taft's view about forgetting the U. N., Eisenhower replied with a crisp, unsmiling "No." Then he went on to explain his position at length. The White House, apparently concerned over the effect of Taft's speech on Allied relations, took the unusual step of allowing a large part of the President's remarks to be quoted directly.

Eisenhower sought also today to calm the South Korean government, which had bitterly opposed current U. N. truce proposals as a sellout. He said this country should never accept any solution which our conscience tells us is unfair to the South Koreans.

Ike Defends Air Force Cuts

Along with his repudiation of Taft's views—a step which may markedly affect his future relations with Congress—Eisenhower told newsmen:

1. He's willing to offer his personal guarantee as a lifelong military man that proposed Air Force budget cuts will not—as of this moment—bring the nation below a reasonable posture of defense. There has been considerable controversy in Congress over that question.

2. He's against admitting Communist China to the United Nations under present world conditions. But he had his doubts about the Senate Appropriations Committee's voting yesterday to withdraw financial support from the U. N., if Red China ever is seated on the Security Council. The President said that sounded like a very drastic remedy.

Romanian Given Walking Papers Claims 'Frameup'

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—A Romanian diplomat who has been handed his walking papers by the United States government said angrily today "it's only a frameup."

The comment came from Christache Zambeti, first secretary of the Romanian legation, who has been accused by the government of trying to blackmail Valeriu Georgescu into serving as a Romanian spy.

Zambeti has been declared an unacceptable person by the government and ordered to leave the country immediately.

But before he left Washington he said flatly he had been framed, without going into any details.

Zambeti also claimed that Georgescu is "a convicted spy," again without furnishing details. "All you have to do is read the Romanian newspapers to find that out," he told a reporter.

Georgescu is a naturalized American who came to this country to work for Standard Oil of New Jersey. He recently disclosed that Zambeti approached him in his New York apartment with an invitation to work with the Romanian Reds if he wanted to see his two teen-age sons, who still are in Romania.

Own Truce Plan Handed To Allies By Angry ROKs

SEOUL, Friday, May 29 (AP)—Angry South Korea handed the Allies Thursday its own recommendations for a Korean truce amid threats its armies would keep on fighting if a secret Allied plan is approved.

In an atmosphere of crisis, U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs hurried here from the provisional capital at Pusan and talked with President Syngman Rhee, apparently to calm Korean tempers. A Rhee spokesman declined to comment on reports Briggs brought a message from Washington.

At Pusan, South Korea's foreign minister accused the Eisenhower administration of "appeasement" and declared U. S. policy would "inevitably lead the whole of Asia to communism."

ROKs Oppose Divided Korea

A National Assembly delegation called at Munsan on Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied truce delegate, denounced the secret Allied plan and said the Republic of Korea Army would keep on fighting if an armistice is reached unsuitable to South Korea.

South Korea violently opposes any settlement which will leave Korea divided and Chinese Red troops in North Korea. While this is a matter to be threshed out at a post-armistice political conference, the South Koreans are angry over some provisions of the secret plan.

Favors Previous POW Plan

One provision they object to reportedly would allow the fate of 34,000 North Koreans, who refuse to return to Red rule, to be settled ultimately by the United Nations Assembly. South Korea favors a previous Allied plan which would release these prisoners in South Korea after an armistice.

Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, Korean member of the truce delegation, handed Harrison a detailed list of South Korean recommendations, but contents were not disclosed.

A South Korean government spokesman said the message was not an ultimatum but a "very important" expression of what his government wanted.

Bethesda Blonde Navy Color Girl

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 28 (AP)—A blonde, 19-year-old Bethesda, Md., girl is the toast of Annapolis tonight. She's the 77th color girl at the Naval Academy—Miss Margaret Johnson whose friends call her "Meg."

Midshipman Lt. William F. LaLonde of Clayton, N.Y., chose her for the spot after the company he commands won the year-long brigade competition.

The color girl traditionally is queen of the school's last week of the academic year, an envy of all midshipmen drags during the June Week celebration which opens here Saturday.

The blue-eyed, five-foot-three girl met LaLonde last year as a blind date at a June Week dance. The two were engaged May 16 and plan to marry next spring.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Johnson of 411 Wilson Lane, Bethesda. Her father is employed by the Department of Agriculture. She graduated from Mt. Vernon Junior College in Washington May 26, just 10 days after her engagement.

Allied Infantry Battles To Stem Big Red Assault

SEOUL, May 29 (Friday) (INS)—Americans, Turks and Britons battled desperately last night and today against 5,000 Chinese Reds who threw themselves at Allied positions behind a crashing artillery barrage on the flaming West Korea front.

Two battalions hit at United States 25th Division strongholds, breaking through Allied wire entanglements and grappling in hand to hand fighting with the defenders.

Turks attached to the 25th met the attack with bayonets when the enemy struck at positions on the slopes of Vegas but they were surrounded.

Allies Counterattacking

Sketchy front-line reports said Allied infantrymen also were counterattacking to throw the Reds from strongholds they had infiltrated. Vicious fighting swirled near Carson Outpost which well to the Communists in an early morning assault and heavy encounters were in progress on nearby Elko Hill.

The Reds launched their large-scale attacks on the Western Front Wednesday night and continued to apply pressure through Friday morning when in strong formations they hit Carson, Elko, Berlin and East Berlin Outposts.

10,000 Reds Hit U. N. Lines

In the past 36 hours more than 10,000 enemy troops have driven against the Allied lines in the face of roaring mortar and artillery barrages.

On the Central Front, stubborn South Koreans fought valiantly to retain the four vital hills still in dispute in the Finger Ridge area. The Reds slammed wave after wave against the Republic of Korea Eighth Division and five points forward of the main line fell after bloody fighting.

Boys Set Church Fire 'To Get Even'

PITTSBURGH, May 28 (AP)—Two 8-year-old boys set fire to the Holy Name Church with a religious candle today "to get even" with the pastor who had scolded them for stealing soda pop from a nearby parochial school.

The Rev. John Schonhardt said he had reprimanded the boys, but also told them they could have the pop any time they asked for it. Damage was estimated at $750 by Police Chief Walter Weir who said the boys are in the custody of the juvenile court.

11 Of 17 Revenue Bureau District Offices Abolished

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The administration today shook up the organization of the Internal Revenue Bureau's top field services, abolishing 11 of 17 district offices and setting up three others.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Internal Revenue Chief T. Coleman Andrews said the reorganization would save about six million dollars a year.

At the same time John B. Dunlap, former commissioner of Internal Revenue who is now district commissioner at Dallas, Tex., announced he is resigning effective June 30 as the way in which "I can best serve the bureau."

The new plan, effective July 1, revises reorganization of the bureau's field services completed under the Truman administration last year.

District offices will remain at Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago, Atlanta, and Dallas.

New district headquarters will be established in San Francisco, Omaha, and Cincinnati.

District offices are being abolished in Buffalo, N. Y., Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Ky., Birmingham, Ala., St. Louis, St. Paul, Minn., Denver, Los Angeles, and Seattle.

Soviets Abolish Military Control In East Germany

BERLIN, May 28 (AP)—The Russians dramatically abolished their military control over East Germany today.

Germans immediately asked themselves if the next step would be withdrawal of the 300,000 Soviet troops and whether the West would then follow suit.

Moscow announced the dissolution of the Soviet Control Commission and said Vladimir Semyenow, balding political expert on German affairs, would take over as "high commissioner."

One Job For Chuikov

Gen. Vassily Chuikov, the hero of Stalingrad who has been wearing two hats as commander of Soviet troops and as chief of the control commission in East Germany, henceforth will be limited to commanding the troops, the announcement said.

Semyenov, Moscow said, will represent Russian interests in Germany, see to it that East German authorities carry out the 1945 Potsdam agreements of the four occupation powers and maintain liaison with the other occupation powers.

Soviets Imitate West

The immediate reaction in the West German capital at Bonn was that the Russians are imitating the Americans, British and French who relegated themselves to civilian control of the Western zones in 1949 when Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government was set up.

The West now has high commissioners in West Germany. It only awaits ratification of the European Army Pact and the peace contract with Bonn before converting its commissioners to ambassadors to a sovereign state.

In the peace contract, however, the West has reserved to itself powers to deal with Russia in matters concerning Soviet-surrounded Berlin and any future German peace treaty.

Aid Cut To Allow Tax Slash Urged

WASHINGTON, May 28 (INS)—House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Reed (R) N. Y., demanded today that foreign aid be cut by two billion dollars to allow an income tax reduction.

Reed, sponsor of a measure which would reduce individual taxes by 10 per cent, also declared that the slash in foreign aid would permit the excess profits tax to die June 30 as scheduled.

President Eisenhower has opposed any income tax reduction at this time and has asked that the profits tax be continued an additional six months.

Cripps' Youngest Daughter To Wed Negro "For Love"

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—Enid Margaret (Peggy) Cripps, youngest daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, announced today her forthcoming marriage "for love" to Joseph Appiah, Negro law student and son of a Gold Coast tribal leader.

Miss Cripps, a tall, buxom, brown haired woman of 32, made the announcement jointly with her smaller, bespectacle fiance, at a news conference in the studio of British artist Felix Topolski.

Appiah, who received part of his education in England and is the personal representative of the Gold Coast Prime Minister in Britain, smilingly declined to give his exact age.

"In my country," he said, "a man's age is always his own secret."

Miss Cripps, however, interrupted to say "Joe is about my age."

Peggy is the daughter of one of the most distinguished men in recent British public life. Her father, who died in 1952, was member of the British Labor government, a leader in the Christian church and a distinguished lawyer. He was the chancellor of the Exchequer in the Attlee Labor government.

The couple said they first met at an African Students Union party in London nearly two years ago.

"It wasn't quite love at first sight," Miss Cripps said, "it came later, but it came definitely."

Asked if they plan to raise a family, Miss Cripps smiled and said "well, if possible ——"

Appiah quickly broke in to say: "Oh, certainly we will. In my country, a family is very important."

Both Miss Cripps and Appiah said their families approved of the marriage.

"My mother, Lady Cripps, will most certainly attend our wedding in London in July," said Miss Cripps.

House Votes Asylum For Polish Airman

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The House today voted permanent asylum in the United States to 21-year-old Franciszek Jarecki, Polish Army pilot who fled Poland in a new Russian MIG15 fighter plane.

The measure now goes to the Senate where prompt approval appears in prospect.

House members made action on the bill an occasion to praise Jarecki who was present. But, knowing little English, he didn't understand much that was said except when Rep. Sadlak (R-Conn) spoke directly to him in the Polish tongue.

U. S. Confirms British Ships Carried Reds

WASHINGTON, May 28 (INS)—The State Department confirmed today charges by Sen. McCarthy's investigating committee that British-owned ships have carried Chinese Communist troops.

In a letter to the Senate group headed by the Wisconsin Republican, Assistant Secretary of State Thruston B. Morton said the department has "reliable information" that such incidents occurred.

Sir Roger Makins, British ambassador to Washington, promptly replied that all evidence indicates that no ship under the British flag and subject to British law had transported Red soldiers.

Dulles Flying Home

TRIPOLI, Libya, May 28 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles conferred with the leaders of the world's youngest nation here today to wind up his tour of the restless Middle East and South Asia.

He is flying home tonight to report to President Eisenhower.

Failure Of British Climbers To Scale Everest Reported

NEW DELHI, India, May 28 (AP)—Usually reliable sources in the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal said today the British 1953 Mt. Everest expedition has failed in its bid to be first to conquer the world's highest peak.

A dispatch from Katmandu, the capital, reported the 15-man team, beaten by ferocious winds and blinding snows as all other expeditions have been, was returning to its main base. But the government radio here said mountaineers at Katmandu believe the team may be prepared to make another effort to scale Everest's summit, thrusting heavenward almost six miles above sea level.

Seasoned Himalayan climbers here were reluctant to accept the sketchy Katmandu report of failure, hoping that this 11th attempt in 32 years to conquer the 29,000-foot peak would succeed as a special gesture in the honor of Queen Elizabeth's coronation, June 2.

The radio continued its weather broadcasts to the expedition, reporting generally clear conditions around Everest for the next 24 hours.

It had been expected that the climbers, led by Col. John Hunt, 42, would continue in teams of two to try to plant the Union Jack on the giant's unconquered crest until the approaching June-October monsoon drove them back.

The experts here speculated that if the team had given up, it was because of illness in the party or because the zero cold and blinding ice in that rarified atmosphere had sapped the strength needed for that last dash for the top.

Aces Say Sabres Could Be Better

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Two jet pilot aces back from Korea said today that American jet planes could be improved—that some "gadgets" in the craft were needed and that some were not.

The pilots—Capt. Joseph McConnell Jr., 31, of Apple Valley, Calif., and Capt. Manuel J. Fernandez, Jr., 28, of Miami, Fla., gave no details.

They told a press conference that they were brought home when they "felt we were just beginning to do some good" but that they were ready to take up their next assignment of passing on their knowledge to other pilots.

Lt. Col. Helman Toler, assigned to escort them, said they would carry out this task with the Air Force "all around the world."

Both pilots emphasized the need for teamwork.

"If we find an individual who thinks he is a lone wolf we put a stop to that because he is not only going to hurt himself but others, too," said Fernandez.

"And he is setting a poor example for new boys," said McConnell.

On the old question of whether American or Communist jet planes are better, McConnell laughed and said: "We have never flown a MIG."

The couple said they first met at an African Students Union party in London nearly two years ago.

"It wasn't quite love at first sight," Miss Cripps said, "it came later, but it came definitely."

Asked if they plan to raise a family, Miss Cripps smiled and said "well, if possible ——"

Appiah quickly broke in to say: "Oh, certainly we will. In my country, a family is very important."

Both Miss Cripps and Appiah said their families approved of the marriage.

"My mother, Lady Cripps, will most certainly attend our wedding in London in July," said Miss Cripps.

Senate Group OKs Ike's New Military Team

Radford Testifies He Has Modified His Views On Air Force

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower's new military team won the unanimous endorsement of the Senate Armed Services Committee today.

The committee recommended confirmation of Adm. Arthur W. Radford as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It also okayed Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as Army chief of staff, Adm. Robert B. Carney as chief of naval operations and Gen. Nathan F. Twining as Air Force chief of staff.

Senate Vote Due Next Week

The Senate is expected to vote on the appointments early next week. Eisenhower is replacing the entire high command in the Pentagon and giving the chairmanship to the Navy for the first time since the Armed Forces Unification Act went into effect in 1947.

A public hearing was held today on the appointments, and later the appointees were questioned privately by members of the committee.

Time Mellows Opposition

Radford testified that time and events had mellowed his onetime hot opposition to Air Force programs and he believed he could now serve in the impartial job of chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The days of four years ago when he denounced big bombers, "billion dollar blunders" and atomic blitz plans are past, the admiral told the committee.

"There have been developments, improvements in material and certain other changes which naturally would cause me to modify my views," he said.

Bethesda Blonde Navy Color Girl

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 28 (AP)—A blonde, 19-year-old Bethesda, Md., girl is the toast of Annapolis tonight. She's the 77th color girl at the Naval Academy—Miss Margaret Johnson whose friends call her "Meg."

Midshipman Lt. William F. LaLonde of Clayton, N.Y., chose her for the spot after the company he commands won the year-long brigade competition.

The color girl traditionally is queen of the school's last week of the academic year, an envy of all midshipmen drags during the June Week celebration which opens here Saturday.

The blue-eyed, five-foot-three girl met LaLonde last year as a blind date at a June Week dance. The two were engaged May 16 and plan to marry next spring.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Johnson of 411 Wilson Lane, Bethesda. Her father is employed by the Department of Agriculture. She graduated from Mt. Vernon Junior College in Washington May 26, just 10 days after her engagement.

House Votes Asylum For Polish Airman

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The House today voted permanent asylum in the United States to 21-year-old Franciszek Jarecki, Polish Army pilot who fled Poland in a new Russian MIG15 fighter plane.

The measure now goes to the Senate where prompt approval appears in prospect.

House members made action on the bill an occasion to praise Jarecki who was present. But, knowing little English, he didn't understand much that was said except when Rep. Sadlak (R-Conn) spoke directly to him in the Polish tongue.

Bowie Appointed

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP) — Robert Richardson Bowie, a native of Baltimore and former general counsel and special advisor to U. S. high commissioner for Germany, today was named director of the State Department's policy planning staff.

Clubwomen Balk

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The General Federation of Women's Clubs today voted down a resolution that would have put it on record as favoring nation-wide presidential preference primaries.

Pair Held As Baby's Kidnapers

William Ray Vanaman, 9 months old, is held by Nurse Kate Smith at Municipal Hospital, Tampa, Fla. The child was taken to the hospital by FBI agents who had arrested a couple and charged them with kidnaping the boy from his mother in St. Louis several weeks. Held are Joanne Elizabeth Strickland (top left), Bartholomew, Ind., and Jack Claude Allen (lower left), 44, New Albany, Pa.

Allied Infantry Battles To Stem Big Red Assault

SEOUL, May 29 (Friday) (INS) — Americans, Turks and Britons battled desperately last night and today against 5,000 Chinese Reds who threw themselves at Allied positions behind a crashing artillery barrage on the flaming West Korea front.

Two battalions hit at United States 25th Division strongholds, breaking through Allied wire entanglements and grappling in hand to hand fighting with the defenders.

Turks attached to the 25th met the attack with bayonets when the enemy struck at positions on the slopes of Vegas but they were surrounded.

Allies Counterattacking

Sketchy front-line reports said Allied infantrymen also were counterattacking to throw the Reds from strongholds they had infiltrated. Vicious fighting swirled near Carson Outpost which well to the Communists in an early morning assault and heavy encounters were in progress on nearby Elko Hill.

The Reds launched their large-scale attacks on the Western Front Wednesday night and continued to apply pressure through Friday morning when in strong formations they hit Carson, Elko, Berlin and East Berlin Outposts.

10,000 Reds Hit U. N. Lines

In the past 36 hours more than 10,000 enemy troops have driven against the Allied lines in the face of roaring mortar and artillery barrages.

On the Central Front, stubborn South Koreans fought valiantly to retain the four vital hills still in dispute in the Finger Ridge area. The Reds slammed wave after wave against the Republic of Korea Eighth Division and five points forward of the main line fell after bloody fighting.

U. S. Confirms British Ships Carried Reds

WASHINGTON, May 28 (INS)—The State Department confirmed today charges by Sen. McCarthy's investigating committee that British-owned ships have carried Chinese Communist troops.

In a letter to the Senate group headed by the Wisconsin Republican, Assistant Secretary of State Thruston B. Morton said the department has "reliable information" that such incidents occurred.

Sir Roger Makins, British ambassador to Washington, promptly replied that all evidence indicates that no ship under the British flag and subject to British law had transported Red soldiers.

Dulles Flying Home

TRIPOLI, Libya, May 28 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles conferred with the leaders of the world's youngest nation here today to wind up his tour of the restless Middle East and South Asia.

He is flying home tonight to report to President Eisenhower.

Boys Set Church Fire 'To Get Even'

PITTSBURGH, May 28 (AP)—Two 8-year-old boys set fire to the Holy Name Church with a religious candle today "to get even" with the pastor who had scolded them for stealing soda pop from a nearby parochial school.

The Rev. John Schonhardt said he had reprimanded the boys, but also told them they could have the pop any time they asked for it. Damage was estimated at $750 by Police Chief Walter Weir who said the boys are in the custody of the juvenile court.

11 Of 17 Revenue Bureau District Offices Abolished

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The administration today shook up the organization of the Internal Revenue Bureau's top field services, abolishing 11 of 17 district offices and setting up three others.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Internal Revenue Chief T. Coleman Andrews said the reorganization would save about six million dollars a year.

At the same time John B. Dunlap, former commissioner of Internal Revenue who is now district commissioner at Dallas, Tex., announced he is resigning effective June 30 as the way in which "I can best serve the bureau."

The new plan, effective July 1, revises reorganization of the bureau's field services completed under the Truman administration last year.

District offices will remain at Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago, Atlanta, and Dallas.

New district headquarters will be established in San Francisco, Omaha, and Cincinnati.

District offices are being abolished in Buffalo, N. Y., Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Ky., Birmingham, Ala., St. Louis, St. Paul, Minn., Denver, Los Angeles, and Seattle.

Soviets Abolish Military Control In East Germany

BERLIN, May 28 (AP)—The Russians dramatically abolished their military control over East Germany today.

Germans immediately asked themselves if the next step would be withdrawal of the 300,000 Soviet troops and whether the West would then follow suit.

Moscow announced the dissolution of the Soviet Control Commission and said Vladimir Semyenow, balding political expert on German affairs, would take over as "high commissioner."

One Job For Chuikov

Gen. Vassily Chuikov, the hero of Stalingrad who has been wearing two hats as commander of Soviet troops and as chief of the control commission in East Germany, henceforth will be limited to commanding the troops, the announcement said.

Semyenov, Moscow said, will represent Russian interests in Germany, see to it that East German authorities carry out the 1945 Potsdam agreements of the four occupation powers and maintain liaison with the other occupation powers.

Soviets Imitate West

The immediate reaction in the West German capital at Bonn was that the Russians are imitating the Americans, British and French who relegated themselves to civilian control of the Western zones in 1949 when Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government was set up.

The West now has high commissioners in West Germany. It only awaits ratification of the European Army Pact and the peace contract with Bonn before converting its commissioners to ambassadors to a sovereign state.

In the peace contract, however, the West has reserved to itself powers to deal with Russia in matters concerning Soviet-surrounded Berlin and any future German peace treaty.

Failure Of British Climbers To Scale Everest Reported

NEW DELHI, India, May 28 (AP)—Usually reliable sources in the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal said today the British 1953 Mt. Everest expedition has failed in its bid to be first to conquer the world's highest peak.

A dispatch from Katmandu, the capital, reported the 15-man team, beaten by ferocious winds and blinding snows as all other expeditions have been, was returning to its main base. But the government radio here said mountaineers at Katmandu believe the team may be prepared to make another effort to scale Everest's summit, thrusting heavenward almost six miles above sea level.

Seasoned Himalayan climbers here were reluctant to accept the sketchy Katmandu report of failure, hoping that this 11th attempt in 32 years to conquer the 29,000-foot peak would succeed as a special gesture in the honor of Queen Elizabeth's coronation, June 2.

The radio continued its weather broadcasts to the expedition, reporting generally clear conditions around Everest for the next 24 hours.

It had been expected that the climbers, led by Col. John Hunt, 42, would continue in teams of two to try to plant the Union Jack on the giant's unconquered crest until the approaching June-October monsoon drove them back.

The experts here speculated that if the team had given up, it was because of illness in the party or because the zero cold and blinding ice in that rarified atmosphere had sapped the strength needed for that last dash for the top.

"Forget U. N." Plan Rejected By President

Eisenhower Says No Free Nation Can Go It Alone And Survive

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower flatly and firmly rejected today Sen. Robert A. Taft's "forget the United Nations" proposal for Korea.

In his first major policy split with the Senate Republican leader, who fought him for the nomination a year ago but became a close adviser and golfing companion, the President told a news conference:

"If you are going to go it alone one place, you of course have to go it alone everywhere. . . . no single free nation can live alone in the world. We have to have friends."

Thus Eisenhower jerked the rug, so far as the administration is concerned, from under the Ohio senator for his Tuesday night statement that the U. S. "Might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Ike Explains Position

Taft said also, in a speech read for him at Cincinnati, that if the present negotiations don't bring an armistice this country should tell its allies "we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

Asked by a newsman today if he shared Taft's view about forgetting the U. N., Eisenhower replied with a crisp, unsmiling "No." Then he went on to explain his position at length. The White House, apparently concerned over the effect of Taft's speech on Allied relations, took the unusual step of allowing a large part of the President's remarks to be quoted directly.

Eisenhower sought also today to calm the South Korean government, which had bitterly opposed current U. N. truce proposals as a sellout. He said this country should never accept any solution which our conscience tells us is unfair to the South Koreans.

Ike Defends Air Force Cuts

Along with his repudiation of Taft's views—a step which may markedly affect his future relations with Congress—Eisenhower told newsmen:

1. He's willing to offer his personal guarantee as a lifelong military man that proposed Air Force budget cuts will not—as of this moment—bring the nation below a reasonable posture of defense. There has been considerable controversy in Congress over that question.

2. He's against admitting Communist China to the United Nations under present world conditions. But he had his doubts about the Senate Appropriations Committee's voting yesterday to withdraw financial support from the U. N., if Red China ever is seated on the Security Council. The President said that sounded like a very drastic remedy.

Aces Say Sabres Could Be Better

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Two jet pilot aces back from Korea said today that American jet planes could be improved—that some "gadgets" in the craft were needed and that some were not.

The pilots—Capt. Joseph McConnell Jr., 31, of Apple Valley, Calif., and Capt. Manuel J. Fernandez, Jr., 28, of Miami, Fla., gave no details.

They told a press conference that they were brought home when they "felt we were just beginning to do some good" but that they were ready to take up their next assignment of passing on their knowledge to other pilots.

Lt. Col. Helman Toler, assigned to escort them, said they would carry out this task with the Air Force "all around the world."

Both pilots emphasized the need for teamwork.

"If we find an individual who thinks he is a lone wolf we put a stop to that because he is not only going to hurt himself but others, too," said Fernandez.

"And he is setting a poor example for new boys," said McConnell.

On the old question of whether American or Communist jet planes are better, McConnell laughed and said: "We have never flown a MIG."

Slain Sailor's Car Examined For Death Clues

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP) — An automobile belonging to a murdered sailor was recovered in a run-down section of Old Baltimore today, and police went over it from bumper to tail light for possible clues to the slaying.

The car was owned by Michael Rusin, 34-year-old first class machinist mate, whose bludgeoned body was found late Wednesday in a remote, wooded section of southeast Baltimore County.

Rusin, was identified by Navy officers as the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rusin of Mildred, Pa., a small town in Sullivan County near Towanda. He was a member of the crew of the USS Corregidor, an escort carrier undergoing repairs here.

His car was found parked and locked on Harford Ave. not far from the Maryland Penitentiary. Residents of the neighborhood said it apparently had been left there some time Tuesday night.

Rusin's wallet, missing from his body, was found under the front seat of the car. The slain sailor's personal belongings also were found, in a suitcase in the car trunk.

Two Negro women on their way to go fishing discovered the body late Wednesday lying face down in a wooded section in the Back River section of southeast Baltimore County.

Bernhard Given Pat On Back For Advice To Duke

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—The Daily Express gave Prince Bernhard of Holland a pat on the back today for reported advice to the Duke of Edinburgh on how to be happily married to a queen.

The Express said in an editorial:

"'Queen Juliana and I,' the prince is quoted as saying, 'have found happiness by following a simple precept—in the nation it is my wife who rules: in the home it is I.'

"Queen Victoria would have given that advice too. For it is recorded that after a quarrel with the prince consort Queen Victoria found her husband's door locked in her face. When she knocked, a voice asked? 'Who is there?'

"'The Queen.'"

"The door remained shut. And only when the Queen answered, 'Your wife, Albert,' did it open."

Coyle's Defense Says Slain Wife Fired First Shot

TOWSON, Md., May 28 (AP)—Defense counsel for a government lawyer charged with murdering his wife told a Baltimore County jury today that the slain woman fired the first shots.

The first shot from the pisol wielded by the red-haired department store dress buyer struck 49-year-old Wilbur F. Coyle Jr., in the neck and deafened him, said Defense Lawyer John Grason Turnbull.

Turnbull, a state senator, said that Coyle couldn't remember the sequence of the other shots fired in the ensuing scuffle.

Police found the body of 45-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth F. Coyle in the bedroom of the family home in a fashionable section of this Baltimore County community the night of Feb. 25.

Coyle entered a plea of innocent through his lawyers as trial opened in Circuit Court before a jury composed of ten fathers and two mothers.

The defense attorney said in his opening statement that Coyle was asleep in the bedroom when his wife returned late the night of the shooting.

He said an argument based on Mrs. Coyle's "unusual friendship" with another woman developed, and the shooting ensued after Coyle asked his wife to see a psychiatrist.

State's Attorney John E. Raine Jr. gave the jury another version.

He said the Coyles' married life had been "full of friction" for many years and was culminated in a night of "unbridled rage" on the part of Coyle, chief attorney for the Baltimore regional office of the Veterans Administration.

"Nobody saw Wilbur Coyle shoot Betty Coyle," Raine said, "but circumstances and evidence will prove he is guilty of the slaying."

Rearward-Facing Seats Will Make U. S. Airline Debut

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—North American Airlines, a non-scheduled airline, said today it will inaugurate the nation's first commercial passenger service with rearward-facing seats tomorrow.

The company said its first DC4 Douglas Skymaster to have the new seat arrangement will leave Los Angeles at 9 p.m., local time, Friday.

The 79-passenger air coach will stop at Kansas City and Chicago, and is due in New York at 2:30 p.m. EST, Saturday.

North American said the backs of the seats are specially designed to support the body and head, and therefore will provide greater safety in the event of an accident.

In the United Kingdom, the Royal Air Force adopted rearward-facing seats for air transports several years ago.

North American said RAF surveys have shown that only one passenger in five objects to facing the rear, that about one-third feel less inclined to air sickness that way, and that the majority find the view better and the airplane motion and noise less apparent.

McKeldin Presented 1952 Hollander Award

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP) — If the existing order of things is unjust, we need not accept it as "necessarily permanent", Gov. McKeldin said today as he accepted the 1952 Sidney Hollander award.

The award is given for outstanding contributions toward the achievement of equal rights and opportunities for Negroes.

It was presented to the governor today at the annual meeting of the Maryland boards of education in the Lord Baltimore Hotel. No Negroes were present at the luncheon meeting.

In accepting the award and $250 check, McKeldin cited the abandonment of the policy of prohibiting Negroes from Ford's Theater as an example of the lesson that "injustices which the fainthearted and the indolent accept without challenge as inevitable are not inevitable."

NICOLET, Que., May 28 (INS)—The Dionne quintuplets slipped away from school today to celebrate their 19th birthday, but only members of the famous family — and no boy friends—joined in the fun.

Deer Has Apparent Yen For Education

OSHKOSH, Wis., May 25 (AP)—A deer with an apparent yen for an education popped into a classroom at Oshkosh State College today.

The doe shattered a 10 by 16-inch pane of glass and landed in a classroom of the administration building just before students arrived for a morning session. In crashing through the small space four feet from the ground the 2-year-old animal suffered only a small cut on its left flank.

The intruder skidded about on the waxed floor until conservation wardens arrived. They released it in a swampy area south of here.

Ancient Roman emperors used to have asbestos material woven into burial robes.

B&O Purchases 60 More New Diesel Units

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has just received delivery on the last of the 60 new diesels included in its last locomotive purchase order.

This order included 40 units from the Electro-Motive Division of General Motors, 10 from the American Locomotive Company and 10 from Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton, and consisted of 46 freight units and 14 road switchers.

This gives the railroad a total of 800 diesel units. With them, 75 per cent of the freight service, 53 per cent of the passenger service and 65 per cent of the yard switching service of the B & O (and its subsidiaries, the B & O Chicago Terminal Railroad and the Staten Island Rapid Railway) has been dieselized.

Only eight years ago, in 1945, diesel power was handling only six per cent of the freight service, 27 per cent of the passenger service and 19 per cent of the switching service.

The B & O's total diesel fleet includes 66 passenger units, 453 freight units and 281 yard switchers. The fleet has been growing steadily. In 1952, 101 new units were added.

Holman Is Appointed WM Personnel Head

Yerby R. Holman has been appointed director of personnel of the Western Maryland Railway Company, according to an announcement of W. Arthur Grotz, president.

Sgt. Barr Named Marine Recruiter Here

Staff Sergeant William B. Barr has been assigned here as non-commissioned officer-in-charge, Marine Corps recruiting sub-station, located at the local Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center on McKaig's Hill. Barr takes over the duties performed previously by Sergeant James O. Case. Case will assist Barr in his duties here.

Barr enlisted in the Marine Corps in June 1949 in his home town of Akron, Ohio. From August 1949 to December 1950, he served at Marine Barracks, San Diego, Calif. From December 1950 to April 1951, Barr was stationed at the Naval Air Station, Akron. From April to June 1951, Barr underwent further instruction and training at the Training and Replacement Command, Camp Joseph H. Pendleton, Calif. From Camp Pendelton he was moved to Japan, and in March 1952 was transferred to Korea, where he served with the First Armored Amphibian Tractor Battalion. In December 1952, Barr left Korea for stateside duty at the Recruitors School, Parris Island, S. C. After completing his course of training and instruction, Barr received orders to the Recruiting Station, Baltimore. After a short indoctrination period at Baltimore, Barr was ordered here.

Staff Sergeant Barr, prior to taking up residence in Akron, and enlisting in the Marine Corps, had lived in Berlin, Pa., for 15 years, and as a result is very familiar with the Tri-state area. Barr recently re-enlisted in the Marine Corps for six years, and is making the Marine Corps his career.

Staff Sergeant Barr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barr of Akron.

Aerial Survey Of Oak Wilt Planned In Area

Plans for an aerial survey of Allegany and Garrett County forest lands to determine the extent of oak wilt disease have been made by state and federal forestry officials, according to William H. Johnson, district forester.

Johnson said a conference was held recently at the University of Maryland to map plans for this year's campaign against the disease which threatens oak stands in the Middle Atlantic states.

Officials At Conference

A number of officials from the U. S. Forest Service; Dr. L. A. Weaver and Dr. Ernest Cory, entomologists with the university; State Forester H. C. Buckingham and Joseph Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Park, attended the conference.

Johnson said personnel from his department will begin a survey by land in Garrett County next week. This will include inspection of areas which were treated last year in the eradication program.

Airplanes will be used early in July to chart areas where the wilt is apparent. This work will result in the infected areas being mapped for further study.

Army May Furnish 'Copters

One plan, to be devised by officials at the university, is for the Army to furnish one or two helicopters for a check of areas previously spotted by the scout planes. The 'copters can hover over any desired area to allow foresters to check carefully. It may even be possible to obtain samples of the oak wilt disease from trees.

Johnson said poisoning of trees has not proven very effective in the eradication work. He explained that the trees, once struck by the wilt, form a block in their capillary action which prevents the fungicide from traversing throughout the length of the tree.

Even tree trunks which have been poisoned are still able to bring forth fruiting of fungus containing the disease. One big drawback in the fight against the oak wilt disease is the mystery of how the disease is transferred. There are a number of theories. Included in possible methods of transfer are birds, wind, or fungus growth from tree to tree through root systems.

Britons And The Monarchy

The popularity of Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain on the eve of her coronation serves to emphasize that despite the social changes in Great Britain in the past century, the British has grown less, rather than more republican in spirit. The London Economist comments:

"The extraordinary thing is that . . . the monarchy has thrived with the decay of the Whig-Tory aristocracy and the rise of socialism, with the shift of political concern from diplomacy to the welfare state . . . The outcome is a new concept of monarchy as an adornment and an inspiration to mass democracy; a royal family that opens housing estates as well as launches battleships, that goes to football at Wembley as well as to the races at Ascot."

It was not always thus. A century and a quarter ago the Russian ambassador in London informed the czar that William IV of Britain had "cast his crown into the gutter" by using his influence to secure passage of the Reform Bill of 1832. The throne might endure for William's lifetime, but the young Victoria, if she ever mounted it, would be swept off again by the rising tide of republicanism.

On the contrary, writes Prof. W. A. Phillips of Oxford, "The course of the next reign was destined speedily to convince even Nicholas I of the baselessness of these fears." Former Prime Minister Attlee, Socialist, puts it another way:

"If the question had been asked in the days of King George IV whether the monarchy would endure, few people would have given with any confidence an affirmative answer. The character and way of life of King George IV both as regent and as king had not commended him to his people. His successor, William IV, evoked little or no enthusiasm. There was quite a lot of republican sentiment in the country, and but for the fortunate accession of young Queen Victoria the monarchy might well have foundered."

The truth is that the British have found the monarchy useful. Witness Attlee again: "The people of Britain are attached to the conception of constitutional monarchy. It is perhaps not always clear to Americans what is meant by 'constitutional monarchy.' It has been said that in Britain the king reigns but does not rule. This is really the essence of the matter. The king, save in a few exceptional circumstances . . . acts upon the advice of his ministers."

Another Socialist leader has pointed out that the monarchy provides stability and momentum for social evolution in Britain. According to John Strachey:

"In its original form of providing a man or a woman who must rule the country simply because his or her father ruled it, the hereditary principle has become unacceptable to the British people for some three centuries. But in the subtle modern form of providing a man or a woman who shall reign while democratically elected, and democratically dismissed, persons rule; in this revised form of constitutional monarchy, the hereditary principle seems to us to have advantages . . . For the great difficulty about comparatively rapid social change is that it is only too apt to cause undue public anxiety, even when it is indispensable. In such times, monarchy is a great comfort to people."

Less Than 'Full'

U. S. Supreme Court seems to have confounded further the confusion surrounding the constitutional edict that "full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state." This confusion seems likely to encourage the sort of conduct that law is supposed to minimize.

Recently the court had before it an appeal by Mrs. Leona Anderson May, who lives with her three children at Lisbon, Ohio. She wanted a decision of the Ohio courts overturned—a decision to the effect that the Ohio courts could not change a ruling by the Wisconsin courts giving her former husband, Owen Anderson, custody of the children.

The United States Supreme Court held that the Ohio courts were wrong, that they are not prevented from considering this case, that in fact they need neither accept nor reject the Wisconsin determination.

So now the case goes back to the Ohio courts for further consideration—or at least consideration—of whether it should be taken under consideration. If that sounds unclear, it was also confusing to some members of the court. There was a 5-to 3 division on this finding, and Justice Jackson wrote a vigorous dissent for the minority voicing the fear of "new confusions." He added that the law of custody seems to have been reduced to "a rule of seize-and-run."

Mrs. May has the children because her former husband, a resident of Wisconsin, allowed them to visit her in Ohio. When the time came to take them back to his home, she refused to give them up. He sued to get the Wisconsin court order enforced, and has yet to succeed. Justice Jackson's fears that the Supreme Court has invited parents denied the custody of their children by one state to "kidnap" them and take them to another seem justified.

Because the "full faith and credit" clause has been taken at something under face value, it is a fact that the same man can be a law-abiding citizen in one state and a bigamist in another. Now the court seems to have diluted a sound principle still further.

Going Out: Transit Radio

The transit company in Washington, D. C., is discontinuing the radio broadcasts in its streetcars and buses on Sunday. This is reported as leaving transit radio—music, newscasts and advertising—in operation in only three of the dozen or so cities which had it six months ago. Something must have gone sour somewhere.

Citizen groups had gone to the courts to prevent transit broadcasting to what they called the "captive audience." However, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled on May 26, 1952, by seven to one that no constitutional issues were involved.

In many of the cities with transit radio the advertising had been geared to reach specific groups at certain times—factory workers from 6 to 7:30 a. m.; white collar workers, from 8:15 to 9:15; thereafter housewives, until the homeward trek of workers in the late afternoon. The rate schedules varied with the density of traffic at different times of the day, and frequently the volume was made louder for the commercials than for the music.

By the end of 1952 the transit company in the nation's capital had installed radio facilities on more than one-fourth of its streetcars and buses, and was earning approximately $2,500 a month from this source. The loss of this revenue may help to bolster the company's current application for higher fares.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Clawlike Fingers

More than 100 years ago the French surgeon, Baron Guillaume Dupuytren, was consulted by a local wine merchant with a peculiar contracture of one hand. His ring and middle fingers had curled to the point where he was unable to straighten them. This process had been gradual, starting several years previously, when a cracking sensation was noted in the palm on lifting a heavy cask.

In all probability, Dupuytren had seen cases like this before and realized it was not possible to straighten the fingers by pulling or through heat and massage. He explained the situation to his patient and, in the conversation, the question of surgery arose. An operation of this nature had never been done but it was logical and worth considering. The procedure must have been a success because shortly thereafter a second operation was performed upon a coachman who was afflicted similarly because the man required the use of both hands to keep his horses under control. Since that time, thousands of cases have been encountered and, in honor of the French surgeon, the disorder is known as Dupuytren's contracture.

The typical deformity is easily recognized. The ring finger is involved first, then the little, and occasionally the middle finger. They are bent and drawn up into the palm gradually by what appears to be shortening, or contraction, of the tendons that pull up the digits. But the appearance belies the true condition. The contracture results from thickening or wrinkling of the fibrous tissues making up the palm of the hand. This structure (palmar fascia) extends into the fingers, and when the contractures come on by degrees the digits are drawn up until they become claw-like. Once this slow and painless process starts, it generally does not regress.

What is the cause? The wine merchant and the coachman blamed injury to the hands; so do most victims. But the majority of physicians who have studied the contracture thoroughly have a different idea. They have seen it in men who never abused their hands, such as physicians, ministers, school teachers, and writers.

Furthermore, women rarely suffer from Dupuytren's even though they subject their hands to trauma constantly. The disturbance also is rare in Negroes and is not common among drillers, road builders, bricklayers, farmers, or those who make their living handling tools, barrels, or wooden containers. Moreover, it attacks that portion of the palm least subject to manual effort and most protected when grasping an object. In the ordinary use of the hand the thumb index and middle fingers usually participate yet these regions seldom are involved.

At operation, the defect is always found in the sheath that covers the tendons and bones, a part well protected by the skin and fatty tissue. The cause apparently is internal. The condition begins, for example, after the age of 40 at a time when degenerative changes take place in the skin, hair, blood vessels, and various body organs. Those who develop Dupuytren's contracture seem susceptible to degeneration in the hand area. No one knows why unless heredity plays a role and it is here that most authorities agree. Forty per cent of the victims recall that father, grandfather, or uncle also suffered from Dupuytren's; a smaller percentage discover later, on discussing the condition with distant relatives, that a family trait exists. There is not medical treatment, but surgery helps, especially in the early stages of the disease.

HORMONES AND FIBROIDS

D. W. writes: Can hormone injections cure fibroid tumors?

REPLY

Hormones may influence the growth of these tumors but, to my knowledge, are neither causative nor curative.

BATH TECHNIQUE

W. L. writes: How is a sitz bath taken?

REPLY

Sitz down in the bathtub with enough warm water to cover the hips.

SINUS CURE

H. J. writes: Can sinus trouble be cured permanently?

REPLY

Yes. In acute sinusitis, complete recovery is the rule. In the chronic type, the chances for cure are greatest when the cause is eliminated(such as to stop swimming when this factor is responsible), and when the nasal passageways have not been distorted by radical operations. Credit for most of the improvements in this field should be given to the sulfonamides and the penicillin-like drugs used in treatment.

HEART DEFECT

T. C. writes: Our 7-year-old daughter has an enlarged artery that leads to the heart. So far it has not affected her in any way. Do you think it may cause trouble in later life?

REPLY

So long as the heart is not involved you have no need to worry provided you have the child examined periodically.

Many Trans-Atlantic Messages Preceded Conference Plan; French Urged Meeting With Malenkov Before Churchill Did; Wilson Sore At Air Force

WASHINGTON—The inside story of how President Eisenhower happened to call the Big Three Bermuda Conference indicates that if he hadn't called it both the French and British were ready to sit down in a conference of their own with Malenkov.

Seeds for the conference were originally planted in Paris during the recent NATO conference, though the seeds were planted in reverse and not by the United States. They came about as a result of the cool, but polite, brush-off given the British by Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey when the British sought to discuss trade and economic problems.

The French also became alarmed over the aloofness of Eisenhower's three top cabinet members on the subject of foreign aid. Despite all the talk, about continuing European defense, they knew that Europe couldn't get better defense for less dollars. French pro-American leaders were also concerned over the way French Socialists were teaming up with French Communists.

As a result, the French cabinet held a meeting on the weekend of May 9 and decided France should take the lead in calling a Big Four conference with Malenkov, Churchill, Eisenhower and Mayer participating.

Premier Mayer immediately advised Churchill of this decision, also sent word to Eisenhower. This, incidentally, was prior to Churchill's speech proposing a Big Four conference.

Meanwhile, Eisenhower had been in touch with both Churchill and Premier Mayer. He had phoned Churchill prior to his speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, had also advised Mayer of the general nature of his speech. All in all, Eisenhower had two phone conversations with Churchill and exchanged half a dozen letters, in which he consistently opposed a Big Four conference.

Irked Over McCarthy

Finally, on May 20, Eisenhower became indignant over the trans-Atlantic furore lashed up by the McCarthy-Attlee statements and decided something must be done to save Anglo-French-American friendship so rapidly going down the drain.

That day he discussed the problem at a National Security Council, then went out for a round of golf. After golf he had dinner with Bob Cutler, the Boston banker now on Ike's staff; C. D. Jackson, ex-Fortune publisher who is White House adviser on psychological warfare; and "Beetle" Smith, undersecretary of State who served as Ike's chief of staff during the war.

At dinner, plans were discussed for a Big Three conference to prepare for or perhaps veto a subsequent Big Four conference—Malenkov to be the fourth conferee.

After dinner, Ike put in a call to Churchill. By that time it was about 2 a. m. in London, but knowing Churchill seldom goes to bed before 3 a. m., Eisenhower figured he would still be up. He was. And he okayed the idea of meeting in Bermuda.

Eisenhower also communicated with the French, including Ambassador Henri Bonnet, whose wife sometimes plays bridge with the President. Bonnet also gave approval to the conference, but suggested first, that since French leaders were scheduled to visit Turkey about June 17, it would be better to hold the conference later in the month; second, since the French cabinet might fall next day, Bonnet urged that announcement of the conference be made early next morning.

The announcement was made as requested, but not early enough to prevent the downfall of Premier Mayer.

NOTE: Eisenhower is opposed to a fixed agenda at Bermuda, wants the agenda to include the world. The French and British feel that the subjects to be discussed should include: Korea, Indo-China, Austria and Germany, and, most delicate of all, a UN seat for Red China.

Irate Charley Wilson

Secretary of Defense Wilson has been clamoring for the scalps of the Air Force officers who put an "official" Air Force statement into the hands of Democratic Congressman Sam Yorty of California, thereby contradicting Wilson's own version of the recent budget cuts.

Inside story is that the statement was not intended to be "official" but was put together in response to a telephone request from Yorty to the Air Force legislative office on Capitol Hill. This is the office which handles all queries from congressmen.

The officer who compiled the answer to Congressman Yorty was Maj. Robert Ginsburgh. However, it contained only unclassified, nonsecret information which the Air Force is required to furnish any congressman upon request. Further, the same facts had been supplied to Secretary Wilson.

Three-Power Conference

When the heads of state of the three great powers meet in Bermuda in the middle of June, they will not limit their discussions to the Korean War. The biggest problem they will face is the dollar—the American dollar.

The British do not regard the Korean War as a war. To them it is a limited military action, as the American marines used to practice in Nicaragua and Haiti and such places. They have a similar problem in Malaya as the French have in Indo-China. So far as they are concerned, Korea should not interfere with the restoration of trade, so that the British can accumulate sufficient dollars to set themselves economically free from the United States.

Last December, leaders of the British Commonwealth met to discuss precisely this problem and they came up with the slogan, "Trade Not Aid." The Commonwealth financial leaders agreed to increase the production of food, raw materials and industrial commodities in the entire commonwealth with the object of increasing the dollar earnings of the sterling-using countries. They hope to reduce imports from the United States in order to decrease the outgo of American dollars.

In a word, the British want to increase the amount of dollars that come into their area, which can only be accomplished by exporting more goods to the United States and importing less from the United States.

While most Americans think in terms of aid for many countries and while we are still fiddling away on such subjects as Point Four and Mutual Assistance, the British, the French, the Mexicans, the Japanese want to go back to trade. Actually, surprising developments are taking place in this good old-fashioned field, as, for instance, the important trading position developed by Mexico and the return of Japan to world markets. The British find that our involvement in the Korean War imperils their position as traders.

And be it noted that trade has a very small conscience. It will flow wherever it can earn a profit even at the cost of lives. All countries want to trade with China and Russia and grow antagonistic because the United State is interfering with good markets.

The British sent their smartest economist, the chancellor of the Exchequer, Richard Butler, to the United States to discuss this problem with the Eisenhower administration. One of the British objectives is the establishment of price arrangements with the United States so that we shall sell wheat, cotton, etc., at lower prices, while we buy rubber, wool, tin and jute at high prices, thus providing a hidden aid.

Further, they wish to have our tariffs lowered. In this respect, they have already put on a remarkable propaganda effort, using great American names and important American organizations to support their effort. Some American businesses could go out of existence should this British effort succeed, but there are those who favor even that because it seems to them that the British need aid and this is a good way to give it to them.

Then the British also want a huge fund established, amounting to billions of dollars, to stabilize the British pound sterling, so that it can more readily be converted into dollars. Such a fund could pump American dollars out of our reserves at Fort Knox into the European and Asiatic markets via London.

This program has many sides and American banks and some business firms can make money out of it. Thus far, Congress has taken no position and the Eisenhower administration has fixed no policy on these questions. Should they come before Congress in some practical form, they could create political havoc.

These economic questions will have to be discussed at Bermuda, because European, South American and Japanese public opinion is putting tremendous pressures upon their governments to open the lanes of trade. And both the Russians and the Chinese have ample exchange to meet their financial obligations when they buy goods.

The real fear of the British is that continued nagging of America will prove to be so irritating that it could well produce such a revulsion as to result in a "Buy American" sentiment, which could reach the dimensions of a boycott of their goods in this, their best market. It is generally held in Europe that Eisenhower's popularity remains sufficiently potent to put their program over if he supports it.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The long-expected reaction of members of Congress, irrespective of party, who feel that our European allies are letting America down by seeking trade with the Communists and by failing to keep up their end in the Korean War now has come in the form of a sensational speech by Senator Taft of Ohio, Republican leader.

Contrary to the mistaken impression that Clement Attlee gave in the British Parliament recently that Americans wanted an all-out war in Asia, Mr. Taft would have the United States, in effect, pull back from both Europe and Asia.

The Ohio senator says that the United Nations has failed to stop aggression and that the world might as well face the fact that only military alliances can prevent aggression—and that a universal body like the UN in which each of five major powers has the veto is useless as a barrier to aggression, however useful it might be otherwise. He doubts the "military practicability of NATO" and thinks that the defense of Europe should be "undertaken by those who occupy Western Europe" and that "after all there are at least 225 million of them, 50 per cent more people than we have in the United States."

Cites Main Reason

The main reason for Mr. Taft's outspoken declaration for an American policy, not of isolation, but of independence is given in these two key paragraphs from the Ohio senator's speech at Cincinnati, copies of which became available here today:

"But there is another difficulty about maintaining the general policy of a unified world-wide opposition to communism by all free nations: we have to have not only the written word, but the real sympathetic support of our allies in that job. Recent events in France and England indicate that they are more anxious to settle with Russia, and resume as much trade as possible, which means that as long as Russia talks nicely, the whole military alliance against Russia is weak, even though military preparations behind the lines continue unabated.

"Secretary Dulles has tried to reassure the iron curtain nations that we are not going to make a deal with Russia giving the Communists a zone of influence over all the iron curtain countries. It seems clear that Mr. Churchill and the French administration would be willing to assign that zone of influence gladly and abandon the Poles, the Czechs, the Hungarians and the Romanians to the tender mercies of Soviet Russia in return for some cutting of armaments, freer trade and promises to behave in the future."

The senator says the present administration has the job of "trying to maintain this world-wide alliance against Soviet Russia," that America has spent billions for that purpose, and that he hopes it can be carried through but doubts whether it is "in fact possible over any long period of years."

In addition to this skepticism about half-hearted alliances, Mr. Taft is doubtful on the miliary side. He adds:

"One atomic bomb would probably destroy a French port for a year, and eight or ten bombs would cut off most means of supplying our soldiers or withdrawing them in case of retreat. If we are worried here about the dropping of Russian bombs on American cities and factories, surely it is 10 times as easy for them to bomb Western Europe and its ports. Or they could leave Europe alone and devote themselves to a bombing of this country, in which case our European expenses would be of doubtful value."

Will Bring Repercussions

Mr. Taft speaks plainly and bluntly. The fact that he is leader of the majority party doesn't prevent him from saying what he as an individual thinks, because there is not supposed to be any politics or partisanship in foreign policy, anyway, and there is no rule which says the leader of a party in the Senate must sit by and fail to criticize a trend in international policy if he thinks it is wrong. The minority leader feels the same freedom to express himself.

The Taft speech will bring repercussions. But, since the British House of Commons debate recently was defended as a right of expression by allies and with a right of criticism of America, the Ohio senator's statement will doubtless be answered abroad and be the basis of a continuing discussion—all of which is healthy because it brings into the open that which has long been smouldering.

This feeling exists in both parties, as may be inferred from the fact that Republicans and Democrats in the Senate Appropriations Committee have just voted almost unanimously to approve an amendment to an appropriation bill which would withdraw all financial support from the UN if Red China or any nation fighting our forces in Korea is admitted to the Security Council of the UN. Similarly, Republicans and Democrats in another Senate committee are demanding that the administration clear up its attitude toward Allied trade with Red China.

These are non-partisan or bi-partisan outbursts of resentment against those governments in Europe wihch not only put their trade above concern for the troops who have made blood sacrifices but are willing not to reward aggression by giving an aggressor government a place in the UN Security Council.

Matter Of Fact

The Test Of Wilson

WASHINGTON

The real question about the administration's controversial defense program is not whether earlier defense planning was practical or impractical, wasteful or economical. The real question is whether Secretary of Defense Wilson is going on the rule that adequate and reasonable American defenses have first priority.

There is a lot of evidence, by now, that first priority may have been given to other aims, such as balancing the budget, reducing taxes, and bringing the wild chaos of the Pentagon under effective managerial control. But the evidence is not as yet final and decisive, because Secretary Wilson might well have done everything that he has done in order to clear the decks for a more efficient effort.

The test of whether Secretary Wilson is primarily concerned with his primary job, which is defending this country, is occurring at this moment. The so-called Kelly report, recommending an American air defense program, is now in the hands of Secretary Wilson and Under Secretary Roger Kyes.

One of the Kelly report's major recommendations is that the people of this country be acquainted with the hard facts of their situation. A draft summary of the air defense problem, suitable for publication, has been given to Wilson and Kyes. Will they publish, or will they suppress this document? Will they act on the Kelly report, or will they shove the whole painful problem back under the rug? There would be no more final and decisive trial of the purposes and character of the new defense leadership.

Air Defenses Worthless

This is true for three reasons. First of all, there is the nature of the problem itself. As has been emphasized before in this space, the growth of Soviet air-atomic power will expose this country to actual destruction, at the will of the Kremlin, within the short space of two to four years. Our existing air defenses are worthless. And the future danger, surely, is one that cannot be ignored by reasoning men.

Second, there is the character of the Kelly report. The warning signal concerning the air defense problem was originally raised by Project Lincoln, a massive research task force of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The Lincoln warnings have been fully confirmed, but the Lincoln program for warding off the future danger has been much criticized as over-ambitious, excessively theoretical and over-experimental.

The men who prepared the Kelly report were chosen by former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett for the precise purpose of a hard-headed, practical assessment of the problem, instead of a purely scientific and theoretical assessment.

Their leader was the most eminent scientist-industrialist in this country, Dr. Mervin J. Kelly of the Bell Laboratories. Robert Wilson of Standard of Indiana, President Frederick L. Hovde of Purdue, and Prof. Charles C. Lauritsen were other members. These men, so conspicuously hard-headed as well as so expertly qualified to judge, have spent five months weighing every relevant fact. Even if the Lincoln program is condemned, the recommendations of this Kelly committee cannot be brushed aside as "impractical."

Urges Making A Start

Third and finally, the compromise program put forward by the Kelly committee is known to be moderate and careful. It does not urge the immediate expenditure of huge sums on equipment that has not been adequately proven. But it does urge making a start now, to build an effective air defense system around the equipment that has been fully proven.

A great deal of equipment has in fact successfully passed through the long stage of research and development. Early warning nets can now be built. Warning on the sea flanks can now be organized. A proper air defense communications system, that will not break down under saturating attacks, can now be put together. Good all-weather fighters can now be produced. These are the essential components of an improved American air defense system, that will eventually guard us against the appalling danger that is known to lie ahead.

Three things are now needed, if this danger is to be guarded against. The Pentagon, with its complex channels and inter-service disputes, is not the place where a whole new weapons system can be designed and constructed. Something like a new Manhattan District Project is required to build up and perfect the air defenses that this country needs.

Then resources are required to finance the effort. If Secretary Wilson and Under Secretary Kyes are not to ignore the Kelly report, they will have to ask for between one and two billion dollars additional, to finance the improvement of the air warning and communications systems that the Kelly report specifically covers. Finally, a much greater effort is also needed to build up the force of fighter-interceptors, without which the best warning system is useless.

Britons And The Monarchy

The popularity of Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain on the eve of her coronation serves to emphasize that despite the social changes in Great Britain in the past century, the British has grown less, rather than more republican in spirit. The London Economist comments:

"The extraordinary thing is that . . . the monarchy has thrived with the decay of the Whig-Tory aristocracy and the rise of socialism, with the shift of political concern from diplomacy to the welfare state . . . The outcome is a new concept of monarchy as an adornment and an inspiration to mass democracy; a royal family that opens housing estates as well as launches battleships, that goes to football at Wembley as well as to the races at Ascot."

It was not always thus. A century and a quarter ago the Russian ambassador in London informed the czar that William IV of Britain had "cast his crown into the gutter" by using his influence to secure passage of the Reform Bill of 1832. The throne might endure for William's lifetime, but the young Victoria, if she ever mounted it, would be swept off again by the rising tide of republicanism.

On the contrary, writes Prof. W. A. Phillips of Oxford, "The course of the next reign was destined speedily to convince even Nicholas I of the baselessness of these fears." Former Prime Minister Attlee, Socialist, puts it another way:

"If the question had been asked in the days of King George IV whether the monarchy would endure, few people would have given with any confidence an affirmative answer. The character and way of life of King George IV both as regent and as king had not commended him to his people. His successor, William IV, evoked little or no enthusiasm. There was quite a lot of republican sentiment in the country, and but for the fortunate accession of young Queen Victoria the monarchy might well have foundered."

The truth is that the British have found the monarchy useful. Witness Attlee again: "The people of Britain are attached to the conception of constitutional monarchy. It is perhaps not always clear to Americans what is meant by 'constitutional monarchy.' It has been said that in Britain the king reigns but does not rule. This is really the essence of the matter. The king, save in a few exceptional circumstances . . . acts upon the advice of his ministers."

Another Socialist leader has pointed out that the monarchy provides stability and momentum for social evolution in Britain. According to John Strachey:

"In its original form of providing a man or a woman who must rule the country simply because his or her father ruled it, the hereditary principle has become unacceptable to the British people for some three centuries. But in the subtle modern form of providing a man or a woman who shall reign while democratically elected, and democratically dismissed, persons rule; in this revised form of constitutional monarchy, the hereditary principle seems to us to have advantages . . . For the great difficulty about comparatively rapid social change is that it is only too apt to cause undue public anxiety, even when it is indispensable. In such times, monarchy is a great comfort to people."

Less Than 'Full'

U. S. Supreme Court seems to have confounded further the confusion surrounding the constitutional edict that "full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state." This confusion seems likely to encourage the sort of conduct that law is supposed to minimize.

Recently the court had before it an appeal by Mrs. Leona Anderson May, who lives with her three children at Lisbon, Ohio. She wanted a decision of the Ohio courts overturned—a decision to the effect that the Ohio courts could not change a ruling by the Wisconsin courts giving her former husband, Owen Anderson, custody of the children.

The United States Supreme Court held that the Ohio courts were wrong, that they are not prevented from considering this case, that in fact they need neither accept nor reject the Wisconsin determination.

So now the case goes back to the Ohio courts for further consideration—or at least consideration—of whether it should be taken under consideration. If that sounds unclear, it was also confusing to some members of the court. There was a 5-to 3 division on this finding, and Justice Jackson wrote a vigorous dissent for the minority voicing the fear of "new confusions." He added that the law of custody seems to have been reduced to "a rule of seize-and-run."

Mrs. May has the children because her former husband, a resident of Wisconsin, allowed them to visit her in Ohio. When the time came to take them back to his home, she refused to give them up. He sued to get the Wisconsin court order enforced, and has yet to succeed. Justice Jackson's fears that the Supreme Court has invited parents denied the custody of their children by one state to "kidnap" them and take them to another seem justified.

Because the "full faith and credit" clause has been taken at something under face value, it is a fact that the same man can be a law-abiding citizen in one state and a bigamist in another. Now the court seems to have diluted a sound principle still further.

Going Out: Transit Radio

The transit company in Washington, D. C., is discontinuing the radio broadcasts in its streetcars and buses on Sunday. This is reported as leaving transit radio—music, newscasts and advertising—in operation in only three of the dozen or so cities which had it six months ago. Something must have gone sour somewhere.

Citizen groups had gone to the courts to prevent transit broadcasting to what they called the "captive audience." However, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled on May 26, 1952, by seven to one that no constitutional issues were involved.

In many of the cities with transit radio the advertising had been geared to reach specific groups at certain times—factory workers from 6 to 7:30 a. m.; white collar workers, from 8:15 to 9:15; thereafter housewives, until the homeward trek of workers in the late afternoon. The rate schedules varied with the density of traffic at different times of the day, and frequently the volume was made louder for the commercials than for the music.

By the end of 1952 the transit company in the nation's capital had installed radio facilities on more than one-fourth of its streetcars and buses, and was earning approximately $2,500 a month from this source. The loss of this revenue may help to bolster the company's current application for higher fares.

Clawlike Fingers

More than 100 years ago the French surgeon, Baron Guillaume Dupuytren, was consulted by a local wine merchant with a peculiar contracture of one hand. His ring and middle fingers had curled to the point where he was unable to straighten them. This process had been gradual, starting several years previously, when a cracking sensation was noted in the palm on lifting a heavy cask.

In all probability, Dupuytren had seen cases like this before and realized it was not possible to straighten the fingers by pulling or through heat and massage. He explained the situation to his patient and, in the conversation, the question of surgery arose. An operation of this nature had never been done but it was logical and worth considering. The procedure must have been a success because shortly thereafter a second operation was performed upon a coachman who was afflicted similarly because the man required the use of both hands to keep his horses under control. Since that time, thousands of cases have been encountered and, in honor of the French surgeon, the disorder is known as Dupuytren's contracture.

The typical deformity is easily recognized. The ring finger is involved first, then the little, and occasionally the middle finger. They are bent and drawn up into the palm gradually by what appears to be shortening, or contraction, of the tendons that pull up the digits. But the appearance belies the true condition. The contracture results from thickening or wrinkling of the fibrous tissues making up the palm of the hand. This structure (palmar fascia) extends into the fingers, and when the contractures come on by degrees the digits are drawn up until they become claw-like. Once this slow and painless process starts, it generally does not regress.

What is the cause? The wine merchant and the coachman blamed injury to the hands; so do most victims. But the majority of physicians who have studied the contracture thoroughly have a different idea. They have seen it in men who never abused their hands, such as physicians, ministers, school teachers, and writers.

Furthermore, women rarely suffer from Dupuytren's even though they subject their hands to trauma constantly. The disturbance also is rare in Negroes and is not common among drillers, road builders, bricklayers, farmers, or those who make their living handling tools, barrels, or wooden containers. Moreover, it attacks that portion of the palm least subject to manual effort and most protected when grasping an object. In the ordinary use of the hand the thumb index and middle fingers usually participate yet these regions seldom are involved.

At operation, the defect is always found in the sheath that covers the tendons and bones, a part well protected by the skin and fatty tissue. The cause apparently is internal. The condition begins, for example, after the age of 40 at a time when degenerative changes take place in the skin, hair, blood vessels, and various body organs. Those who develop Dupuytren's contracture seem susceptible to degeneration in the hand area. No one knows why unless heredity plays a role and it is here that most authorities agree. Forty per cent of the victims recall that father, grandfather, or uncle also suffered from Dupuytren's; a smaller percentage discover later, on discussing the condition with distant relatives, that a family trait exists. There is not medical treatment, but surgery helps, especially in the early stages of the disease.

Many Trans-Atlantic Messages Preceded Conference Plan; French Urged Meeting With Malenkov Before Churchill Did; Wilson Sore At Air Force

WASHINGTON—The inside story of how President Eisenhower happened to call the Big Three Bermuda Conference indicates that if he hadn't called it both the French and British were ready to sit down in a conference of their own with Malenkov.

Seeds for the conference were originally planted in Paris during the recent NATO conference, though the seeds were planted in reverse and not by the United States. They came about as a result of the cool, but polite, brush-off given the British by Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey when the British sought to discuss trade and economic problems.

The French also became alarmed over the aloofness of Eisenhower's three top cabinet members on the subject of foreign aid. Despite all the talk, about continuing European defense, they knew that Europe couldn't get better defense for less dollars. French pro-American leaders were also concerned over the way French Socialists were teaming up with French Communists.

As a result, the French cabinet held a meeting on the weekend of May 9 and decided France should take the lead in calling a Big Four conference with Malenkov, Churchill, Eisenhower and Mayer participating.

Premier Mayer immediately advised Churchill of this decision, also sent word to Eisenhower. This, incidentally, was prior to Churchill's speech proposing a Big Four conference.

Meanwhile, Eisenhower had been in touch with both Churchill and Premier Mayer. He had phoned Churchill prior to his speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, had also advised Mayer of the general nature of his speech. All in all, Eisenhower had two phone conversations with Churchill and exchanged half a dozen letters, in which he consistently opposed a Big Four conference.

Irked Over McCarthy

Finally, on May 20, Eisenhower became indignant over the trans-Atlantic furore lashed up by the McCarthy-Attlee statements and decided something must be done to save Anglo-French-American friendship so rapidly going down the drain.

That day he discussed the problem at a National Security Council, then went out for a round of golf. After golf he had dinner with Bob Cutler, the Boston banker now on Ike's staff; C. D. Jackson, ex-Fortune publisher who is White House adviser on psychological warfare; and "Beetle" Smith, undersecretary of State who served as Ike's chief of staff during the war.

At dinner, plans were discussed for a Big Three conference to prepare for or perhaps veto a subsequent Big Four conference—Malenkov to be the fourth conferee.

After dinner, Ike put in a call to Churchill. By that time it was about 2 a. m. in London, but knowing Churchill seldom goes to bed before 3 a. m., Eisenhower figured he would still be up. He was. And he okayed the idea of meeting in Bermuda.

Eisenhower also communicated with the French, including Ambassador Henri Bonnet, whose wife sometimes plays bridge with the President. Bonnet also gave approval to the conference, but suggested first, that since French leaders were scheduled to visit Turkey about June 17, it would be better to hold the conference later in the month; second, since the French cabinet might fall next day, Bonnet urged that announcement of the conference be made early next morning.

The announcement was made as requested, but not early enough to prevent the downfall of Premier Mayer.

NOTE: Eisenhower is opposed to a fixed agenda at Bermuda, wants the agenda to include the world. The French and British feel that the subjects to be discussed should include: Korea, Indo-China, Austria and Germany, and, most delicate of all, a UN seat for Red China.

Irate Charley Wilson

Secretary of Defense Wilson has been clamoring for the scalps of the Air Force officers who put an "official" Air Force statement into the hands of Democratic Congressman Sam Yorty of California, thereby contradicting Wilson's own version of the recent budget cuts.

Inside story is that the statement was not intended to be "official" but was put together in response to a telephone request from Yorty to the Air Force legislative office on Capitol Hill. This is the office which handles all queries from congressmen.

The officer who compiled the answer to Congressman Yorty was Maj. Robert Ginsburgh. However, it contained only unclassified, nonsecret information which the Air Force is required to furnish any congressman upon request. Further, the same facts had been supplied to Secretary Wilson.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Three-Power Conference

When the heads of state of the three great powers meet in Bermuda in the middle of June, they will not limit their discussions to the Korean War. The biggest problem they will face is the dollar—the American dollar.

The British do not regard the Korean War as a war. To them it is a limited military action, as the American marines used to practice in Nicaragua and Haiti and such places. They have a similar problem in Malaya as the French have in Indo-China. So far as they are concerned, Korea should not interfere with the restoration of trade, so that the British can accumulate sufficient dollars to set themselves economically free from the United States.

Last December, leaders of the British Commonwealth met to discuss precisely this problem and they came up with the slogan, "Trade Not Aid." The Commonwealth financial leaders agreed to increase the production of food, raw materials and industrial commodities in the entire commonwealth with the object of increasing the dollar earnings of the sterling-using countries. They hope to reduce imports from the United States in order to decrease the outgo of American dollars.

In a word, the British want to increase the amount of dollars that come into their area, which can only be accomplished by exporting more goods to the United States and importing less from the United States.

While most Americans think in terms of aid for many countries and while we are still fiddling away on such subjects as Point Four and Mutual Assistance, the British, the French, the Mexicans, the Japanese want to go back to trade. Actually, surprising developments are taking place in this good old-fashioned field, as, for instance, the important trading position developed by Mexico and the return of Japan to world markets. The British find that our involvement in the Korean War imperils their position as traders.

And be it noted that trade has a very small conscience. It will flow wherever it can earn a profit even at the cost of lives. All countries want to trade with China and Russia and grow antagonistic because the United State is interfering with good markets.

The British sent their smartest economist, the chancellor of the Exchequer, Richard Butler, to the United States to discuss this problem with the Eisenhower administration. One of the British objectives is the establishment of price arrangements with the United States so that we shall sell wheat, cotton, etc., at lower prices, while we buy rubber, wool, tin and jute at high prices, thus providing a hidden aid.

Further, they wish to have our tariffs lowered. In this respect, they have already put on a remarkable propaganda effort, using great American names and important American organizations to support their effort. Some American businesses could go out of existence should this British effort succeed, but there are those who favor even that because it seems to them that the British need aid and this is a good way to give it to them.

Then the British also want a huge fund established, amounting to billions of dollars, to stabilize the British pound sterling, so that it can more readily be converted into dollars. Such a fund could pump American dollars out of our reserves at Fort Knox into the European and Asiatic markets via London.

This program has many sides and American banks and some business firms can make money out of it. Thus far, Congress has taken no position and the Eisenhower administration has fixed no policy on these questions. Should they come before Congress in some practical form, they could create political havoc.

These economic questions will have to be discussed at Bermuda, because European, South American and Japanese public opinion is putting tremendous pressures upon their governments to open the lanes of trade. And both the Russians and the Chinese have ample exchange to meet their financial obligations when they buy goods.

The real fear of the British is that continued nagging of America will prove to be so irritating that it could well produce such a revulsion as to result in a "Buy American" sentiment, which could reach the dimensions of a boycott of their goods in this, their best market. It is generally held in Europe that Eisenhower's popularity remains sufficiently potent to put their program over if he supports it.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The long-expected reaction of members of Congress, irrespective of party, who feel that our European allies are letting America down by seeking trade with the Communists and by failing to keep up their end in the Korean War now has come in the form of a sensational speech by Senator Taft of Ohio, Republican leader.

Contrary to the mistaken impression that Clement Attlee gave in the British Parliament recently that Americans wanted an all-out war in Asia, Mr. Taft would have the United States, in effect, pull back from both Europe and Asia.

The Ohio senator says that the United Nations has failed to stop aggression and that the world might as well face the fact that only military alliances can prevent aggression—and that a universal body like the UN in which each of five major powers has the veto is useless as a barrier to aggression, however useful it might be otherwise. He doubts the "military practicability of NATO" and thinks that the defense of Europe should be "undertaken by those who occupy Western Europe" and that "after all there are at least 225 million of them, 50 per cent more people than we have in the United States."

Cites Main Reason

The main reason for Mr. Taft's outspoken declaration for an American policy, not of isolation, but of independence is given in these two key paragraphs from the Ohio senator's speech at Cincinnati, copies of which became available here today:

"But there is another difficulty about maintaining the general policy of a unified world-wide opposition to communism by all free nations: we have to have not only the written word, but the real sympathetic support of our allies in that job. Recent events in France and England indicate that they are more anxious to settle with Russia, and resume as much trade as possible, which means that as long as Russia talks nicely, the whole military alliance against Russia is weak, even though military preparations behind the lines continue unabated.

"Secretary Dulles has tried to reassure the iron curtain nations that we are not going to make a deal with Russia giving the Communists a zone of influence over all the iron curtain countries. It seems clear that Mr. Churchill and the French administration would be willing to assign that zone of influence gladly and abandon the Poles, the Czechs, the Hungarians and the Romanians to the tender mercies of Soviet Russia in return for some cutting of armaments, freer trade and promises to behave in the future."

The senator says the present administration has the job of "trying to maintain this world-wide alliance against Soviet Russia," that America has spent billions for that purpose, and that he hopes it can be carried through but doubts whether it is "in fact possible over any long period of years."

In addition to this skepticism about half-hearted alliances, Mr. Taft is doubtful on the miliary side. He adds:

"One atomic bomb would probably destroy a French port for a year, and eight or ten bombs would cut off most means of supplying our soldiers or withdrawing them in case of retreat. If we are worried here about the dropping of Russian bombs on American cities and factories, surely it is 10 times as easy for them to bomb Western Europe and its ports. Or they could leave Europe alone and devote themselves to a bombing of this country, in which case our European expenses would be of doubtful value."

Will Bring Repercussions

Mr. Taft speaks plainly and bluntly. The fact that he is leader of the majority party doesn't prevent him from saying what he as an individual thinks, because there is not supposed to be any politics or partisanship in foreign policy, anyway, and there is no rule which says the leader of a party in the Senate must sit by and fail to criticize a trend in international policy if he thinks it is wrong. The minority leader feels the same freedom to express himself.

The Taft speech will bring repercussions. But, since the British House of Commons debate recently was defended as a right of expression by allies and with a right of criticism of America, the Ohio senator's statement will doubtless be answered abroad and be the basis of a continuing discussion—all of which is healthy because it brings into the open that which has long been smouldering.

This feeling exists in both parties, as may be inferred from the fact that Republicans and Democrats in the Senate Appropriations Committee have just voted almost unanimously to approve an amendment to an appropriation bill which would withdraw all financial support from the UN if Red China or any nation fighting our forces in Korea is admitted to the Security Council of the UN. Similarly, Republicans and Democrats in another Senate committee are demanding that the administration clear up its attitude toward Allied trade with Red China.

These are non-partisan or bipartisan outbursts of resentment against those governments in Europe wihch not only put their trade above concern for the troops who have made blood sacrifices but are willing not to reward aggression by giving an aggressor government a place in the UN Security Council.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

The Test Of Wilson

WASHINGTON

The real question about the administration's controversial defense program is not whether earlier defense planning was practical or impractical, wasteful or economical. The real question is whether Secretary of Defense Wilson is going on the rule that adequate and reasonable American defenses have first priority.

There is a lot of evidence, by now, that first priority may have been given to other aims, such as balancing the budget, reducing taxes, and bringing the wild chaos of the Pentagon under effective managerial control. But the evidence is not as yet final and decisive, because Secretary Wilson might well have done everything that he has done in order to clear the decks for a more efficient effort.

The test of whether Secretary Wilson is primarily concerned with his primary job, which is defending this country, is occurring at this moment. The so-called Kelly report, recommending an American air defense program, is now in the hands of Secretary Wilson and Under Secretary Roger Kyes.

One of the Kelly report's major recommendations is that the people of this country be acquainted with the hard facts of their situation. A draft summary of the air defense problem, suitable for publication, has been given to Wilson and Kyes. Will they publish, or will they suppress this document? Will they act on the Kelly report, or will they shove the whole painful problem back under the rug? There would be no more final and decisive trial of the purposes and character of the new defense leadership.

Air Defenses Worthless

This is true for three reasons. First of all, there is the nature of the problem itself. As has been emphasized before in this space, the growth of Soviet air-atomic power will expose this country to actual destruction, at the will of the Kremlin, within the short space of two to four years. Our existing air defenses are worthless. And the future danger, surely, is one that cannot be ignored by reasoning men.

Second, there is the character of the Kelly report. The warning signal concerning the air defense problem was originally raised by Project Lincoln, a massive research task force of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The Lincoln warnings have been fully confirmed, but the Lincoln program for warding off the future danger has been much criticized as over-ambitious, excessively theoretical and over-experimental.

The men who prepared the Kelly report were chosen by former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett for the precise purpose of a hard-headed, practical assessment of the problem, instead of a purely scientific and theoretical assessment.

Their leader was the most eminent scientist-industrialist in this country, Dr. Mervin J. Kelly of the Bell Laboratories. Robert Wilson of Standard of Indiana, President Frederick L. Hovde of Purdue, and Prof. Charles C. Lauritsen were other members. These men, so conspicuously hard-headed as well as so expertly qualified to judge, have spent five months weighing every relevant fact. Even if the Lincoln program is condemned, the recommendations of this Kelly committee cannot be brushed aside as "impractical."

Urges Making A Start

Third and finally, the compromise program put forward by the Kelly committee is known to be moderate and careful. It does not urge the immediate expenditure of huge sums on equipment that has not been adequately proven. But it does urge making a start now, to build an effective air defense system around the equipment that has been fully proven.

A great deal of equipment has in fact successfully passed through the long stage of research and development. Early warning nets can now be built. Warning on the sea flanks can now be organized. A proper air defense communications system, that will not break down under saturating attacks, can now be put together. Good all-weather fighters can now be produced. These are the essential components of an improved American air defense system, that will eventually guard us against the appalling danger that is known to lie ahead.

Three things are now needed, if this danger is to be guarded against. The Pentagon, with its complex channels and inter-service disputes, is not the place where a whole new weapons system can be designed and constructed. Something like a new Manhattan District Project is required to build up and perfect the air defenses that this country needs.

Then resources are required to finance the effort. If Secretary Wilson and Under Secretary Kyes are not to ignore the Kelly report, they will have to ask for between one and two billion dollars additional, to finance the improvement of the air warning and communications systems that the Kelly report specifically covers. Finally, a much greater effort is also needed to build up the force of fighter-interceptors, without which the best warning system is useless.

Suit Contending State Bond Bill Invalid Is Filed

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP) — The anticipated suit contending the legislature did a faulty job in authorizing 15 million dollars in bonds for general construction was filed today.

While the Board of Public Works had been advised earlier that the bond bill's validity was in doubt, lawyers who filed the suit said they did so without agreement with the state.

The suit was in behalf of a Baltimore taxpayer, Miss Edna Steedman. It asks that the state be enjoined from issuing the bonds.

Since the money is for building improvements throughout the state, a speedy hearing is expected so the Court of Appeals can make a final ruling.

Doubt over the bond bill's constitutionality rests in an amendment fostered by the Senate Finance Committee. This would require interest and principal on the bonds to be paid from general funds.

The constitution requires that loans be paid off with a tax levy. Maryland traditionally has met this requirement with a tax on property.

The 1953 bond act contains the customary section for a tax to pay off the loan but it apparently is nullified by the amendment calling for use of general funds. The general funds are derived from all forms of taxation and state income.

The amendment constitutes "a supplementary appropriation bill," the taxpayer's suit contends. Appropriations are contained in the governor's budget which is separate from the bond bill.

The amendment emerged from the Senate Finance Committee which is headed by Sen. Goldstein (D-Calvert). He has been an ardent advocate of discontinuance of the policy of pledging the property tax to pay off state bonds.

The Board of Public Works already has approved issuance of $230,000 of the bonds to buy more land for Coppin State Teachers College.

If the bond bill is declared unconstitutional, it would throw a monkey wrench into such major improvements as two million dollars for an institution for the criminally insane, more than one million dollars in improvements at Rosewood Training School, close to two million for the University of Maryland and start of the 12-year highway improvement program.

Thus Gov. McKeldin might be forced to call a special session to rectify the situation. He has declined to do so on other bills on rent control and property assessment which were passed but found faulty in legislative form.

Dock Racketeering Charged By Truckers

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP) — A group of truckers charged today that a type of racketeering prevents them from loading their own trucks at New York waterfront piers.

They now must hire—or at least pay—"public loaders" for the purpose, and they asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to ban that practice. The petition was filed by the Empire State Highway Transportation Association.

The action was another in a series of moves aimed at clearing up the turbulent New York-New Jersey waterfront situation, in which charges of terrorism and violence have been investigated by local, state and federal authorities.

Betty Ingle Cook Appointed District 1, Nurses President

District No. 1, Maryland State Nurses Association accepted the resignation of Mrs. Elizabeth Gerard as president and appointed Mrs. Betty Ingle Cook to fill the presidency until January 1954, at the meeting Wednesday evening. It was held at Happy Hills Restaurant. Mrs. Gerard is leaving next week to make her home in Prince George county.

Miss Christine Williams, chairman of the Nominating committee for District 1, reported she had presented the ballots to the American Nurses Association and the Maryland State League for Nurses, last week in Baltimore, and they will be mailed to members in the near future.

Routine reports were given and the district by-laws, revised by the board of directors, were discussed and copies are being mailed to each member.

Dr. A. J. Mirkin, guest speaker, was introduced by Miss Elizabeth Broadwater, Program chairman. Because the International Congress of Nurses is being held in Brazil this summer, Dr. Mirkin spoke on Brazil, where he spent three years while serving in the Army.

Speaking of San Paulo in particular, Dr. Mirkin, said it is a highly industrialized city with modern transportation and meals similar to American ones. Their hospitals and nurses are on a different basis than American ones, but they are improving. Since 1922 their educational system is progressing and the first nursing school in Rio was organized in 1942. Sanitation too is improving.

Dr. Mirkin eplained that while the Americans were in Brazil they had taught the people a great deal, as they can speak the English language. When the Army returned home he said, it left all its surgical equipment for the Brazilians to use.

There is no direct income tax in Brazil but a sales tax, Dr. Mirkin pointed out and said parts of Brazil are pro-Nazi. The speaker illustrated his talk with pictures showing cathedrals, buildings and beautiful country. He spoke of the climate and the slowness in putting up a 12 to 15 story building, which requires one year.

District 1 will be represented by the state group at the congress.

Meetings will be resumed in September at Sacred Heart Hospital.

The PTA elected James Porter, president; Mrs. Grace Miller, vice president; Mrs. Alma Conner, secretary; and Mrs. Hazel Griffey, treasurer. Refreshments were served after the business session.

Each committee chairman reported. Mrs. Joseph Goldman, retiring president, who left last evening for Shreveport, La., to join her husband, was presented a traveling case and a corsage.

The luncheon committee was composed of Mrs. A. J. Mirkin, chairman; Mrs. Lee Lichenstein, Mrs. Mark Lazarus, Mrs. Sumner Hirsch, Mrs. Belle Wolferman, Mrs. Irving Millenson, Mrs. Robert Gerson, Mrs. Adolph Hirsch and Mrs. Nat Guggenheimer.

Since 1922 their educational system is progressing and the first nursing school in Rio was organized in 1942. Sanitation too is improving.

Dr. Mirkin eplained that while the Americans were in Brazil they had taught the people a great deal, as they can speak the English language. When the Army returned home he said, it left all its surgical equipment for the Brazilians to use.

There is no direct income tax in Brazil but a sales tax, Dr. Mirkin pointed out and said parts of Brazil are pro-Nazi. The speaker illustrated his talk with pictures showing cathedrals, buildings and beautiful country. He spoke of the climate and the slowness in putting up a 12 to 15 story building, which requires one year.

District 1 will be represented by the state group at the congress.

Meetings will be resumed in September at Sacred Heart Hospital.

$300,000 Phone Program Sought In Rural W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 28 (AP)—The Public Service Commission has set for hearing June 5 a proposal to build a $300,000 telephone system which would serve parts of four eastern panhandle counties.

The petition was filed by the Hardy Telephone Co., Inc., a non-profit cooperative.

The system which would involve building about 150 miles of telephone lines, would serve rural sections of Hardy, Grant, Hampshire and Pendleton counties.

The cooperative proposes to use poles of the Hardy County Light and Power Association, Inc., for stringing its wires.

The group proposes to finance the system by charging a membership fee of $10 and by assessing its members additional amounts not to exceed $40.

The balance of the money needed would be obtained through a 20-year loan from the Rural Electrification Administration. The petition from Vance Mathias, president of the group, said that 330 farmers already had paid the $10 fee and had pledged payment of the assessment.

Communities which would be served include:

Baker, Fabius, Fisher, Lawson City, Lost River, Mathias, McCauley, Peru and Taylor, all in Hardy County, and Rio in Hampshire.

Equity Suit Filed

An equity suit was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bill of complaint was titled Pearl R. Keith vs. George Lloyd Keith.

Driver Is Given Jail Sentence

A former Cumberland man was sentenced Wednesday in Trial Magistrates Court to serve 55 days in Allegany County Jail on four state motor charges including "failure to comply with a written summons to appear" for a hearing.

The defendant, Richard Hoover Newhouse, 302 Woodland Avenue, Baltimore, was arrested May 11 on Route 40 east of Frostburg by State Trooper Patrick Stakem.

Newhouse pleaded guilty to exceeding 50 miles an hour, failing to halt at a stop sign, failing to keep to the right of the center of the highway and the summons count.

Magistrate Donald W. Mason imposed one 25-day term in default of a fine of $25.75 for speeding and ten days each on each of the other three charges. He also recommended that Newhouse's chauffeur's license be suspended.

Investigation disclosed the defendant had no operator's permit.

Antietam National Cemetery Crowded; No More War Dead To Be Buried There

By A. VERNON DAVIS
Central Press Correspondent

SHARPSBURG, Md. — With the approach of another Memorial Day, the people of the small town of Sharpsburg, Md., are again unfurling their flags and dusting out the bunting—preparing to refresh the memory of an often forgetful nation about the great Battle of Antietam fought there 91 years ago.

It was after this bitter, bloody struggle in the surrounding countryside in 1862 that President Abraham Lincoln decided to issue his Emancipation Proclamation, freeing the slaves.

Today the people of Sharpsburg are faced with a new problem. This year, in the face of Korean casualty lists, it was announced that Antietam National Cemetery must be closed to further burials. There is no more room.

The Historical Society of Washington county, Maryland, has gone on record in favor of quickly establishing another national cemetery, this one also to be on the flowering acres of Antietam, where the Blue and the Gray fought so savagely so long ago.

This battle of the Blue and Gray, fought on Sept. 11, 1866, just 70 miles northwest of Washington, D. C., was the bloodiest single day of fighting ever recorded on the North American continent.

Union forces under Gen. George B. McClellan met the Confederate troops of Gen. Robert E. Lee just north of the Potomac river.

Some 130,000 men engaged in the battle. Historians are in conflict as to who won. The battle meant the holding of Southern forces from further advances north until the day of Gettysburg. Antietam is also hailed as a great heroic action on the part of the smaller Confederate forces.

It was on this battlefield, at the invitation of the people of Sharpsburg, that the present governor of Maryland, Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, came to speak out to a world even more deeply divided now than were the states during the Civil war.

"Real peace in the world can only be obtained," said Governor McKeldin, "by replacing the philosophy of Pilate with the Prince of Peace. War, always cruel but once governed by rules, has degenerated to a state of barbarism.

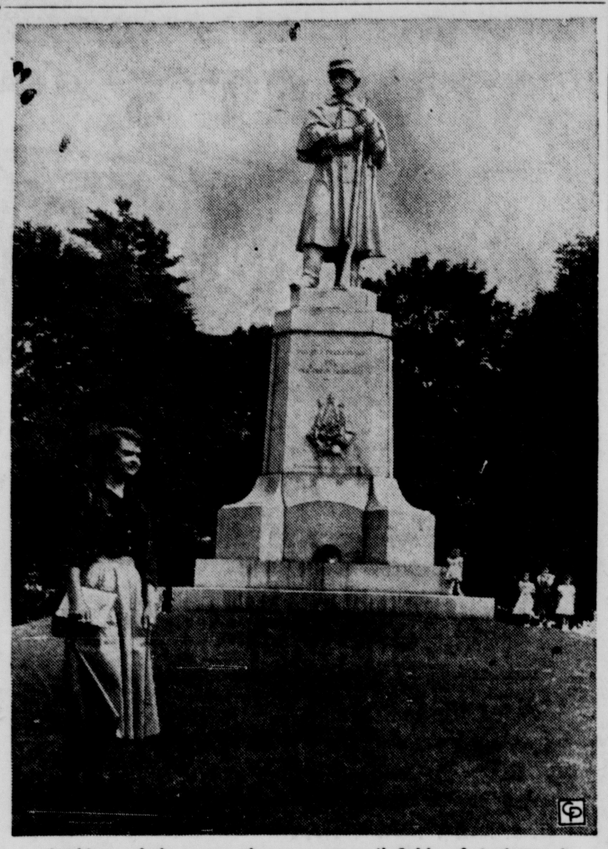
"However, there is hope for the world because war has reached a stage of absurdity, and even the most heartless of the power-mad rulers and war mongers do not want to be typed as absurd."

The governor explained that he believes war has become absurd because each side knows it has the power to destroy, but each also knows it, too, can be destroyed.

It is through the efforts of the people of the battlefield town of Sharpsburg that, each year, folk for miles around are called together on May 30 to recall the story of Antietam, and at the same time to mourn the men who have died in all our wars.

In a large, tree-covered cemetery, high on a hill just east of town, and overlooking the battlefield, are buried 5,000 men of the North who died there. Dominating this national shrine is a striking monument — a colossal granite statue of a Union soldier.

This statue has been dedicated, not to the troops of the North or the soldiers of the Confederacy, but simply "To those who fought, not for themselves, but for their country."



Looking calmly across the now tranquil fields of Antietam is this heroic statue of a Union soldier. The inscription on the pedestal reads: "Not for themselves but for their country."

Rows of newer gravestones have sprung up in later years. It is in this section that baskets of flowers are seen each Memorial Day, placed there by relatives and acquaintances of men who died in later struggles for freedom — World War I, World War II, the Korean conflict.

Memories of those who died in the War Between the States are cherished through history, but personal contact with that period grows weaker with the passing of relatives and friends of those who died at Antietam.

At this time every year, the battlefield town spruces up for a long street parade and appropriate ceremonies at the national cemetery.

President Lincoln, saddened by the heavy loss of life, inspected the blood-soaked battlefield and saw the sprawled bodies of the dead who had fallen in the cause of what they thought right.

Here on this battlefield have been still other great men.

Sgt. William McKinley, later another President of the United States, fought at Antietam. The sons of America's leading men of letters of the time also fought here — the sons of Oliver Wendell Holmes, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Daniel Webster and James Russell Lowell.

Police Send Wanderer Back To Frostburg

A 63-year-old Frostburg area man found walking around in his underwear at Hagerstown was returned to his home Wednesday.

Hub City authorities said Leroy Garlock, who was taken into custody Tuesday, gave no explanation for his conduct and did not explain the lunchbox he was carrying.

Garlock, in barefeet, was found knocking on doors. He had a ticket for a bus ride from Washington to Frostburg.

Startled housewives called police. The man's clothes were found near a parked car, and it is believed he apparently entered the auto to remove them. A hole was burned in the car seat.

After checking with Washington authorities, sheriff deputies put Garlock on a bus bound for Frostburg.

Allegany Upsets Hyndman; LaSalle Scores 7th Straight

Dawson Stops Loop Leaders By 6-2 Score

Flintstone Bows To Explorer Nine; Ft. Hill Tops Tigers

Bob "Fat Boy" Dawson, curveballing righthander, stopped the league-leading Hyndman tossers yesterday at Campobello as Allegany's Campers snapped a six-game losing streak to defeat the Pennsylvanians, 6-2.

The loss was the third of the season for the Hyndman nine. Meanwhile LaSalle's amazing Explorers dumped Flintstone, 7-4, at Stitcher Field to vault within one game of the top rungers on the strength of a seven-game winning skein.

Tigers Lose Again

At Barton Central High of Lonaconing dropped its second game in as many days to virtually drop out of the pennant race as Fort Hill's Sentinels bagged a 10-4 decision over the Tigers.

Coupled with Wednesday's 4-3 loss to Bruce, Central now has a 5-6 mark for the year, three losses more than Hyndman's 9-3 record. LaSalle has a 9-5 season for third place and Beall's idle Mountaineers hold second with an 8-4 record.

Jimmy Hoffman's homerun following an error and a triple by Rodney Breedlove off Lefty Lou Hite gave the AHS nine three runs in the sixth inning yesterday to ice the contest. Hyndman trailed 3-1 at the time and added another useless tally in the top of the seventh off Dawson.

The husky righthander walked only three and fanned four in chalking up his first victory of the campaign as Allegany snapped out of its doldrums which had cost it six consecutive contests.

Bruce May was the loser.

At Stitcher Field LaSalle came from behind a 4-3 deficit to score four runs in the sixth to bag its 7th win in a row over the past 11 days.

Nolan Starts Rally

Hugh Nolan, the winning pitcher, started the rally with a base on balls, Denny Shuck singled and Barney Spearman sacrificed. When Ricky Harris hit to the pitcher the throw to third was late and the bases were loaded.

Mike Larkin then singled home two runs, Dude Shaffer was safe on an error with Harris scoring, and Joe Conroy brought home the fourth tally with a one-base knock.

Dwight Morris paced the losing Flintstone tossers with two hits.

Fort Hill broke a 4-all tie in the fifth frame with a five-run outburst against Central as Wayne Murray went all the way to register his third victory of the season.

Two Homeruns Hit

Ed Thompson had poled a three-run homerun over the wall at Central to knot the count in the fourth but Coach Bobby Cavanaugh's charges iced the game in the fifth. George McGregor added the last Fort Hill run with an inside-the-park circuit swat in the sixth.

Jack Brodie collected three hits for the losers.

In games today Allegany invades Bruce at Westernport, Central hosts Mt. Savage at Barton, Flintstone is at Hyndman and Fort Hill meets Beall on the Sentinels diamond.

Konstanty Wins Over Bucs, 9-8

Phils Take Series From Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, May 28 (AP)—Big Jim Konstanty, the Philadelphia Phillies 36-year-old righthander, survived three big Pittsburgh Pirate uprisings today but managed to wobble to a 9-8 win for his fourth victory of the year.

The Pirates collected 15 hits off Konstanty while the Phillies banged out 13 off four Pittsburgh pitchers, including Tom Glaviano's first homer of the year with one aboard in the seventh.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics sent Mel Parnell down to his first defeat of the season, 6-1, today after six straight victories, the first time they've beaten the Boston Red Sox lefthander since April 20, 1951.

Tommy Umphlett's ninth inning home run was the only Sox run off Rookie Marion Fricano who tossed a steady five hitter.

Whitey Ford Checks Nats With Five Hits

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Bob Porterfield's five-game winning streak was snapped by the New York Yankees today, 7-2, as Whitey Ford checked Washington for five hits.

Ford pitched brilliant ball after giving up a home run to Wayne Terwilliger in the first inning. That was the only Washington hit until Eddie Fitzgerald led off the eighth with a single.

Between the hits off Ford, the Yankees blasted Porterfield for two runs in the fifth and chased their ex-team mate in the sixth with five more.

Irv Noren tripled to drive in Ford and Billy Martin with the first pair in the fifth. The Yanks batted around and started over with 10 hitters in the sixth to score the big bundle of five, all off Porterfield.

Mickey Vernon of Washington went hitless in four trips, breaking his 20-game consecutive hitting streak.

Drivers Pick Memorial Day Race Favorites

Vukovich, Agabashian Co-Leaders Of Poll

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28 (AP)—Twenty veteran Indianapolis Motor Speedway drivers have picked Bill Vukovich and Freddie Agabashian as co-favorites in the 37th annual 500-mile race Saturday.

The uncertainty of auto racing was reflected in the poll.

Vukovich and Agabashian received five votes each in informal voting among members of the champion 100-mile-an-hour club, exclusive organization of men who have finished in the "500" at speeds over 100.

Bill Holland, the 1949 winner, was picked on two ballots and Sam Hanks got two votes.

The rest of the opicons were scattered among Johnnie Parsons, 1950 winner; Art Cross, Ernie McCoy, Paul Russo and Duke Nalon.

It may be significant that only McCoy of the six first-time starters was picked to win. If he comes through, he will be the sixth rookie to win in 37 Memorial Day races.

The drivers' club also guessed at the winning speed, with testimates ranging from 127.7 by Louis Meyer, three-time winner of the race who now builds racing engines, to a fat 131.4 by Jimmy Bryan, who finished sixth last year.

Worth Lutz, ace forward passer for Duke University, tossed 79 passes last season. Only two were intercepted.

The wiry, 29-year-old Philadelphian will meet Ken Rosewall, Australia's brilliant 18-year-old boy wonder, for the title tomorrow.

Big Ten Votes To Retain Contract With West Coast

Ballot Is 6 To 4 For 3-Year Pact

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 28 (INS)—The Big Ten voted 6 to 4 today to extend for another three years its Rose Bowl football agreement with the Pacific Coast Conference.

Indiana cast the decisive ballot at the Big Ten faculty committee meeting in Champaign.

Previously, nine of the 10 universities in the Western Conference had announced their votes. Five had voted in favor of extending the pact which expires January 1, 1954.

If Indiana had cast a negative ballot, making a 5 to 5 tie, the rivalry which was inaugurated in 1947 would have come to an end.

Teaming up with Indiana in favor of renewal were Illinois, Michigan, Purdue, Ohio State and Iowa. Opposed were Northwestern, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Minnesota.

The first West Coast victory after six straight defeats was scored by Southern California, Pacific Coast Conference champion, last January 1 against the Wisconsin Badgers. The score was 7 to 0.

Other scores were:
1947—Illinois 45, UCLA 14
1948—Michigan 49, USC 0
1949—Northwestern 20, California 14
1950—Ohio State 17, California 14
1951—Michigan 14, California 6
1952—Illinois 40, Stanford 7.

Penn Ave. Mibs Title Decided

James Weisenberg Is 21st Winner

James Weisenberg, runnerup at Virginia Avenue two years ago and at Penn Avenue last year, won the marbles championship at Penn Avenue yesterday in a thrilling finals series with William Muir. The diminutive Muir won the first game of the three game series 7-3, but Weisenberg copped the next two 7-6 and 7-1. The new Penn Avenue champ got better as he went along while Muir weakened.

These two were the finalists in a tournament that drew 89 contestants, bringing the total of participants in this year's Times-News Marbles Tournament to approximately 1200.

Last of the 22 school finals is scheduled today at Gephart School, where the Cumberland area finals will also be played June 2 starting at 3 p. m.

Bruce Jones, pitcher for the Michigan State baseball team, is proud of his athletic heritage. His father and two brothers were State athletes.

Flintstone Bows To Explorer Nine; Ft. Hill Tops Tigers

Bob "Fat Boy" Dawson, curveballing righthander, stopped the league-leading Hyndman tossers yesterday at Campobello as Allegany's Campers snapped a six-game losing streak to defeat the Pennsylvanians, 6-2.

The loss was the third of the season for the Hyndman nine. Meanwhile LaSalle's amazing Explorers dumped Flintstone, 7-4, at Stitcher Field to vault within one game of the top rungers on the strength of a seven-game winning skein.

Tigers Lose Again

At Barton Central High of Lonaconing dropped its second game in as many days to virtually drop out of the pennant race as Fort Hill's Sentinels bagged a 10-4 decision over the Tigers.

Coupled with Wednesday's 4-3 loss to Bruce, Central now has a 5-6 mark for the year, three losses more than Hyndman's 9-3 record. LaSalle has a 9-5 season for third place and Beall's idle Mountaineers hold second with an 8-4 record.

Jimmy Hoffman's homerun following an error and a triple by Rodney Breedlove off Lefty Lou Hite gave the AHS nine three runs in the sixth inning yesterday to ice the contest. Hyndman trailed 3-1 at the time and added another useless tally in the top of the seventh off Dawson.

The husky righthander walked only three and fanned four in chalking up his first victory of the campaign as Allegany snapped out of its doldrums which had cost it six consecutive contests.

Bruce May was the loser.

At Stitcher Field LaSalle came from behind a 4-3 deficit to score four runs in the sixth to bag its 7th win in a row over the past 11 days.

Nolan Starts Rally

Hugh Nolan, the winning pitcher, started the rally with a base on balls, Denny Shuck singled and Barney Spearman sacrificed. When Ricky Harris hit to the pitcher the throw to third was late and the bases were loaded.

Mike Larkin then singled home two runs, Dude Shaffer was safe on an error with Harris scoring, and Joe Conroy brought home the fourth tally with a one-base knock.

Dwight Morris paced the losing Flintstone tossers with two hits.

Fort Hill broke a 4-all tie in the fifth frame with a five-run outburst against Central as Wayne Murray went all the way to register his third victory of the season.

Two Homeruns Hit

Ed Thompson had poled a three-run homerun over the wall at Central to knot the count in the fourth but Coach Bobby Cavanaugh's charges iced the game in the fifth George McGregor added the last Fort Hill run with an inside-the-park circuit swat in the sixth.

Jack Brodie collected three hits for the losers.

In games today Allegany invades Bruce at Westernport, Central hosts Mt. Savage at Barton, Flintstone is at Hyndman and Fort Hill meets Beall on the Sentinels diamond.

Konstanty Wins Over Bucs, 9-8

Phils Take Series From Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, May 28 (AP)—Big Jim Konstanty, the Philadelphia Phillies 36-year-old righthander, survived three big Pittsburgh Pirate uprisings today but managed to wobble to a 9-8 win for his fourth victory of the year.

The Pirates collected 15 hits off Konstanty while the Phillies banged out 13 off four Pittsburgh pitchers, including Tom Glaviano's first homer of the year with one aboard in the seventh.

Fricano Scores Win Over Boston

PHILADELPHIA, May 28 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics sent Mel Parnell down to his first defeat of the season, 6-1, today after six straight victories, the first time they've beaten the Boston Red Sox lefthander since April 20, 1951.

Tommy Umphlett's ninth inning home run was the only Sox run off Rookie Marion Fricano who tossed a steady five hitter.

Yankees Blast Porterfield, Top Washington, 7-2

Whitey Ford Checks Nats With Five Hits

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Bob Porterfield's five-game winning streak was snapped by the New York Yankees today, 7-2, as Whitey Ford checked Washington for five hits.

Ford pitched brilliant ball after giving up a home run to Wayne Terwilliger in the first inning. That was the only Washington hit until Eddie Fitzgerald led off the eighth with a single.

Between the hits off Ford, the Yankees blasted Porterfield for two runs in the fifth and chased their ex-team mate in the sixth with five more.

Irv Noren tripled to drive in Ford and Billy Martin with the first pair in the fifth. The Yanks batted around and started over with 10 hitters in the sixth to score the big bundle of five, all off Porterfield.

Mickey Vernon of Washington went hitless in four trips, breaking his 20-game consecutive hitting streak.

Drivers Pick Memorial Day Race Favorites

Vukovich, Agabashian Co-Leaders Of Poll

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28 (AP)—Twenty veteran Indianapolis Motor Speedway drivers have picked Bill Vukovich and Freddie Agabashian as co-favorites in the 37th annual 500-mile race Saturday.

The uncertainty of auto racing was reflected in the poll.

Vukovich and Agabashian received five votes each in informal voting among members of the champion 100-mile-an-hour club, exclusive organization of men who have finished in the "500" at speeds over 100.

Bill Holland, the 1949 winner, was picked on two ballots and Sam Hanks got two votes.

The rest of the opicons were scattered among Johnnie Parsons, 1950 winner; Art Cross, Ernie McCoy, Paul Russo and Duke Nalon.

It may be significant that only McCoy of the six first-time starters was picked to win. If he comes through, he will be the sixth rookie to win in 37 Memorial Day races.

The drivers' club also guessed at the winning speed, with testimates ranging from 127.7 by Louis Meyer, three-time winner of the race who now builds racing engines, to a fat 131.4 by Jimmy Bryan, who finished sixth last year.

Worth Lutz, ace forward passer for Duke University, tossed 79 passes last season. Only two were intercepted.

The wiry, 29-year-old Philadelphian will meet Ken Rosewall, Australia's brilliant 18-year-old boy wonder, for the title tomorrow.

Big Ten Votes To Retain Contract With West Coast

Ballot Is 6 To 4 For 3-Year Pact

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 28 (INS)—The Big Ten voted 6 to 4 today to extend for another three years its Rose Bowl football agreement with the Pacific Coast Conference.

Indiana cast the decisive ballot at the Big Ten faculty committee meeting in Champaign.

Previously, nine of the 10 universities in the Western Conference had announced their votes. Five had voted in favor of extending the pact which expires January 1, 1954.

If Indiana had cast a negative ballot, making a 5 to 5 tie, the rivalry which was inaugurated in 1947 would have come to an end.

Teaming up with Indiana in favor of renewal were Illinois, Michigan, Purdue, Ohio State and Iowa. Opposed were Northwestern, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Minnesota.

The first West Coast victory after six straight defeats was scored by Southern California, Pacific Coast Conference champion, last January 1 against the Wisconsin Badgers. The score was 7 to 0.

Other scores were:
1947—Illinois 45, UCLA 14
1948—Michigan 49, USC 0
1949—Northwestern 20, California 14
1950—Ohio State 17, California 14
1951—Michigan 14, California 6
1952—Illinois 40, Stanford 7.

Penn Ave. Mibs Title Decided

James Weisenberg Is 21st Winner

James Weisenberg, runnerup at Virginia Avenue two years ago and at Penn Avenue last year, won the marbles championship at Penn Avenue yesterday in a thrilling finals series with William Muir. The diminutive Muir won the first game of the three game series 7-3, but Weisenberg copped the next two 7-6 and 7-1. The new Penn Avenue champ got better as he went along while Muir weakened.

These two were the finalists in a tournament that drew 89 contestants, bringing the total of participants in this year's Times-News Marbles Tournament to approximately 1200.

Last of the 22 school finals is scheduled today at Gephart School, where the Cumberland area finals will also be played June 2 starting at 3 p. m.

Bruce Jones, pitcher for the Michigan State baseball team, is proud of his athletic heritage. His father and two brothers were State athletes.

Dodgers Edge Giants, 7-6, On Passed Ball

Error Paves Way For 10-Inning Win

BROOKLYN, May 28 (AP) — Catcher Ray Noble muffed a third strike allowing Peewee Reese to reach first base in the tenth inning and later was guilty of a passed ball permitting Reese to score with the run that broke a tie and gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-6 triumph over the New York Giants today.

Relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm was the victim of the Catcher's eerie work behind the plate. The knuckleball artist, in his longest tenure on the mound this season, had pitched runless ball from the fourth inning on, except for the seventh when a home run by pinch hitter Wayne Belardi, a single by Reese and Duke Snider's triple had pulled the Dodgers even at 6-6.

Bill Underdonk tossed a five-hitter to edge Allen Sheetz in a hurling duel as the BPO Elks handed the Eagles their sixth defeat yesterday at Campobello by a 3-1 score, in a Rocking Chair League engagement.

The win moved the Elks into second place behind the pace-setting Amvets who maintained the Knights of Columbus' losing streak at eight straight by blasting the Caseys 15-6 at East Side.

In the other league contest the third-place Moose team avenged Wednesday's loss to the Outdoor Club by turning back the latter at Stitcher Field, 4-1 behind Jim Roby's five-hit twirling.

Bob Pence's homerun with a mate aboard in the fourth inning broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Sheetz and Underdonk and gave the Elks twirler all the runs he needed for his fourth triumph. Roy Lester had two bingles for the winners and Pence added a single to his homerun.

Van Roby's catch of foul fly ball on the bank at Campobello for the Elks featured the game.

Joe Becker had two hits for the Moose as Roby outdueled Jim Morrison and chalked up his fourth Rocking Chair win. Bud Young chipped in with a double for the only extra base hit for the winners.

Vern Penner had two singles for the Outdoor Club.

The top-rung Amvets had little trouble with the Caseys as they scored in every inning but the second. Lou Bell, George Geatz, Joe Geatz, and Jim Gaffney each had two hits for the winners. Gaffney polled a homerun.

Larry Geiger's triple and single paced the losers. The scores:

Frostburg Hot Stove League Opens Saturday

Four Team Circuit Plays 24 Contests

FROSTBURG, May 28 — The Frostburg Hot Stove Baseball League will officially open its second season Saturday, with a Memorial Day doubleheader scheduled at the Frostburg Ball Park.

The opening game engagement, which pits the Cubs against the defending champion Braves, will get underway at 1:30 p.m. The second game will immediately follow the initial contest with the Cards and the Tigers tangling.

Each team in the four-club circuit will play 12 games this season, six less than last year, league officials announced. The 24-game schedule will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Officials of the circuit noted 112 boys have signed contracts this year to participate in the second season of the young loop. With 18 players permitted on each team, 72 of the players will be picked by the four league managers for their rosters. Twelve players on each squad will be uniformed.

New rules this year also cut the base paths from the regulation 90-foot length to 75 feet to speed up the game.

Managers for the coming year are George Rendar, Cubs; Guy Mallow, Tigers; Dale Coleman, Cards; and Harold Connors, Braves.

Browns Win, 7-5

ST. LOUIS, May 28 (AP) — Bob Elliott's grand slam home run and some expert relief pitching by Satchel Paige helped Dick Littlefield and the St. Louis Browns a sweep of the two-game series.

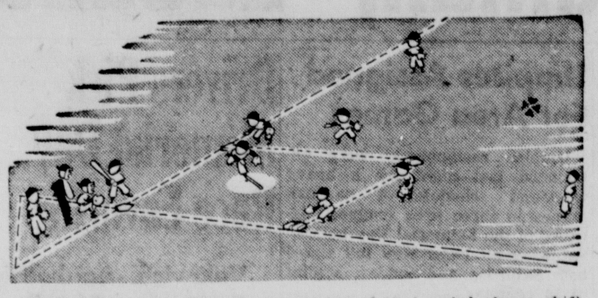
CATCH TO THIS? SURE IS!



HERE'S Artist Andy Bishop's impression of that weird player shift used by Manager Ernie White of the Columbia, S. C., Reds in the Sally league in a night game against Augusta, declared legal by the umpire. Manager White shifted his strong-armed center fielder, Hal Stamey, from his regular post to a spot behind the catcher when runners were on first base. The regular Columbia catcher, Ev Johnson, has a shoulder injury which prevents him from getting off a fast throw to second base to stop base stealing. Stamey was ready to throw to second but no runners attempted to steal. When the Augusta team protested, the umpire pointed to a baseball rule which reads: "A defensive player, other than the pitcher and catcher, may occupy any position on the playing field in fair territory." The catcher's box would be fair territory. (International)

Harvie Ward Advances In British Golf

Enters Quarter-Finals With Two Victories

HOYLAKE, England, May 28 (AP) —Harvie Ward went on another spree of blazing hot championship golf today, blasting two awed opponents from the British amateur championship.

He went into the quarter-final round by lopsided margins to become the only American in the last eight.

Ward turned first on English international Alan Turner on the morning round and skated home 7 and 6. Then he manhandled Guy Wolstenholme, 5 and 3, in the sixth round.

On Ward now rests America's hope of keeping the big silver trophy. Six other American hopes fell today.

Big Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., one of the tournament's most popular and best golfers, lost on the 19th hole to Ireland's Cecil Beamish this morning when he "suddenly lost coordination" in his hands. That's the way the giant blond golfer described what happened to him on the 18th when he missed a two foot putt which would have given him the match. Beamish took the extra hole for victory.

Five other Americans fared this way in the fifth round—Dale Buettner, Toledo, lost to Maj. Melville Bucher, Scotland, on the 23rd; Ernest Arend, Deal, N. J., lost to Dixon Rawlinson, England, 4 and 3; Harold Ridgley,

Dodgers Edge Giants, 7-6, On Passed Ball

Error Paves Way For 10-Inning Win

BROOKLYN, May 28 (AP) — Catcher Ray Noble muffed a third strike allowing Peewee Reese to reach first base in the tenth inning and later was guilty of a passed ball permitting Reese to score with the run that broke a tie and gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-6 triumph over the New York Giants today.

Relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm was the victim of the Catcher's eerie work behind the plate. The knuckleball artist, in his longest tenure on the mound this season, had pitched runless ball from the fourth inning on, except for the seventh when a home run by pinch hitter Wayne Belardi, a single by Reese and Duke Snider's triple had pulled the Dodgers even at 6-6.

Bill Underdonk tossed a five-hitter to edge Allen Sheetz in a hurling duel as the BPO Elks handed the Eagles their sixth defeat yesterday at Campobello by a 3-1 score, in a Rocking Chair League engagement.

The win moved the Elks into second place behind the pace-setting Amvets who maintained the Knights of Columbus' losing streak at eight straight by blasting the Caseys 15-6 at East Side.

In the other league contest the third-place Moose team avenged Wednesday's loss to the Outdoor Club by turning back the latter at Stitcher Field, 4-1 behind Jim Roby's five-hit twirling.

Bob Pence's homerun with a mate aboard in the fourth inning broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Sheetz and Underdonk and gave the Elks twirler all the runs he needed for his fourth triumph. Roy Lester had two bingles for the winners and Pence added a single to his homerun.

Van Roby's catch of foul fly ball on the bank at Campobello for the Elks featured the game.

Joe Becker had two hits for the Moose as Roby outdueled Jim Morrison and chalked up his fourth Rocking Chair win. Bud Young chipped in with a double for the only extra base hit for the winners.

Vern Penner had two singles for the Outdoor Club.

The top-rung Amvets had little trouble with the Caseys as they scored in every inning but the second. Lou Bell, George Geatz, Joe Geatz, and Jim Gaffney each had two hits for the winners. Gaffney polled a homerun.

Larry Geiger's triple and single paced the losers. The scores:

Frostburg Hot Stove League Opens Saturday

Four Team Circuit Plays 24 Contests

FROSTBURG, May 28 — The Frostburg Hot Stove Baseball League will officially open its second season Saturday, with a Memorial Day doubleheader scheduled at the Frostburg Ball Park.

The opening game engagement, which pits the Cubs against the defending champion Braves, will get underway at 1:30 p.m. The second game will immediately follow the initial contest with the Cards and the Tigers tangling.

Each team in the four-club circuit will play 12 games this season, six less than last year, league officials announced. The 24-game schedule will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Officials of the circuit noted 112 boys have signed contracts this year to participate in the second season of the young loop. With 18 players permitted on each team, 72 of the players will be picked by the four league managers for their rosters. Twelve players on each squad will be uniformed.

New rules this year also cut the base paths from the regulation 90-foot length to 75 feet to speed up the game.

Managers for the coming year are George Rendar, Cubs; Guy Mallow, Tigers; Dale Coleman, Cards; and Harold Connors, Braves.

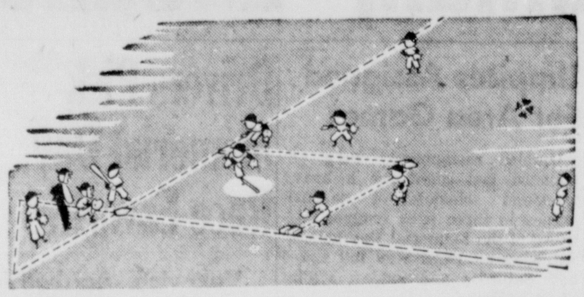
CATCH TO THIS? SURE IS!



HERE'S Artist Andy Bishop's impression of that weird player shift used by Manager Ernie White of the Columbia, S. C., Reds in the Sally league in a night game against Augusta, declared legal by the umpire. Manager White shifted his strong-armed center fielder, Hal Stamey, from his regular post to a spot behind the catcher when runners were on first base. The regular Columbia catcher, Ev Johnson, has a shoulder injury which prevents him from getting off a fast throw to second base to stop base stealing. Stamey was ready to throw to second but no runners attempted to steal. When the Augusta team protested, the umpire pointed to a baseball rule which reads: "A defensive player, other than the pitcher and catcher, may occupy any position on the playing field in fair territory." The catcher's box would be fair territory. (International)

Harvie Ward Advances In British Golf

Enters Quarter-Finals With Two Victories

HOYLAKE, England, May 28 (AP) —Harvie Ward went on another spree of blazing hot championship golf today, blasting two awed opponents from the British amateur championship.

He went into the quarter-final round by lopsided margins to become the only American in the last eight.

Ward turned first on English international Alan Turner on the morning round and skated home 7 and 6. Then he manhandled Guy Wolstenholme, 5 and 3, in the sixth round.

On Ward now rests America's hope of keeping the big silver trophy. Six other American hopes fell today.

Big Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., one of the tournament's most popular and best golfers, lost on the 19th hole to Ireland's Cecil Beamish this morning when he "suddenly lost coordination" in his hands. That's the way the giant blond golfer described what happened to him on the 18th when he missed a two foot putt which would have given him the match. Beamish took the extra hole for victory.

Final Commencement Week At Central Begins Sunday

LONACONING— Commencement Week exercises of the 1953 graduating class of Central High School will begin Sunday with the annual religious service at 3 p. m. in the high school auditorium.

The 39 boys and 33 girls will be clad in dark blue caps and gowns for the 54th and final Commencement Week at the school. The class of 72 students will bring the total number of students to be graduated from Central to 1,781.

"March Processional" from the Opera "Norma" will be played by the high school orchestra to open the Sunday religious service.

"Lead On, O King Eternal," the school hymn, will be sung, to be followed by prayer. The Mixed Chorus will sing two anthems, "Now Let All The Heavens Adore Thee," and "Holy Art Thou."

The Twenty-Third Psalm will be a responsive reading. The hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy" will be followed by announcements by Principal Jack A. Petry of the closing school activities, and the double octet will sing "Bless The Lord."

Rev. Charles W. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, will give the sermon. The hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," benediction, and postlude — "Triumphal March" from "Aida," a piano selection, will conclude the service.

Invocation will be given by Rev. Joseph W. Young, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Final Commencement Week At Central Begins Sunday

LONACONING— Commencement Week exercises of the 1953 graduating class of Central High School will begin Sunday with the annual religious service at 3 p. m. in the high school auditorium.

The 39 boys and 33 girls will be clad in dark blue caps and gowns for the 54th and final Commencement Week at the school. The class of 72 students will bring the total number of students to be graduated from Central to 1,781.

"March Processional" from the Opera "Norma" will be played by the high school orchestra to open the Sunday religious service.

"Lead On, O King Eternal," the school hymn, will be sung, to be followed by prayer. The Mixed Chorus will sing two anthems, "Now Let All The Heavens Adore Thee," and "Holy Art Thou."

The Twenty-Third Psalm will be a responsive reading. The hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy" will be followed by announcements by Principal Jack A. Petry of the closing school activities, and the double octet will sing "Bless The Lord."

Rev. Charles W. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, will give the sermon. The hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," benediction, and postlude — "Triumphal March" from "Aida," a piano selection, will conclude the service.

Invocation will be given by Rev. Joseph W. Young, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

The nail-biting habit can usually be broken when little lasses are appealed to subtly!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Worse than merely affecting her poise and looks, nail-biting can actually do lasting damage to a little girl's hands. It can result in permanently stubby fingers and nails. With young ladies between the ages of eight and twelve, there is a method which I have seen work wonders in breaking the nail-biting habit.

To put this plan into operation, first enlist the aid of someone outside the family who is highly admired by your small lass — a teacher, glamour teen or aunt. Prompt this confederate to give the child a really grown-up manicure kit and accompany it with a card to this effect, "I hope you have fun with this kit and that using it will make your hands as lovely and as charming as they deserve to be."

Nail-Biting Cure

An appeal to her pride? You bet, and it's just the sort of flattery a young girl strives to earn.

Meanwhile, bite your tongue if necessary to keep from ever saying, "Stop biting your nails." But do show your lass how to make the most of her gift. Make a game of giving her manicures, oil soak and all. You might also give her a charm bracelet — a dime store model is fine if it's one she'd like to show others. When she shows off her bracelet, her hand shows off too and she'll be quicker to catch the implication than you might dream.

Nail Pointers

For greatest results, bear these points in mind: 1. When nail or cuticle is bitten to the quick, rub mentholatum into the sore spots. This will feel so comforting the child will learn to do it herself and thus become more nail conscious. 2. Since television watchers are notable nail biters, slather fingers in oil and encase them in tiny thimbles when the set's on. If you can get away with it, that is!

3. Jagged spots induce biting so keep them smooth with an emery. 4. Colorless polish prevents rough nail surfaces; appeals to young ladies, too! 5. Don't fail to give praise when it's due. 6. Even though all goes smoothly for a while, you can expect retrogressions. Don't be discouraged. Instead, pick up your patience and begin again.

Your reward will be in your child's eventual progress. Hers will be in a lifetime of lovely hands.

Flight 100 From Idlewild To London

I still don't know exactly what is news on television and what is not. I do know that the TV news people find news in unexpected places when they look for it — which is much too seldom. Last Sunday, for example, Edward R. Murrow on very good film took us all aboard Pan American's Flight 100 to London. It was a fascinating voyage.

John Crosby

I was especially interested because I've taken Pan Am's Flight 100 a couple times myself. But even if I hadn't, I would have found this an interesting trip. This is a travel year, a year in which all existing records for Americans on the loose are being shattered. If that isn't news, I don't know what is.

To digress a little, it is my theory that the American abroad—not the ones who are visiting there but those who are living there—is one of the big untouched stories of our time. The American abroad—his neuroses (of which he has more than you think), his intellectual isolation from his native land, his deep-seated fear of returning home—is a very interesting and profoundly misunderstood animal. I hope Mr. Murrow will some day tackle him.

Sunday, though, he was engrossed in a smaller matter, the not-so-simple task of transporting the American to Europe. The Boeing Stratocruiser is a very large airplane and Murrow took us on a tour of it, showing the minute and exhaustive inspection of the airplane before takeoff, the bewildering array of gadgets, the food lockers. The camera was on the flight deck during the drama of the takeoff, which was a far more elaborate procedure than I suspected. And then Murrow roamed up the aisle and talked to a passenger about the motives for his trip.

Late at night, when the berths were made up and the lights out, he routed out another passenger, Hal Boyle of the Associated Press, an old war-time buddy of Murrow's who is beginning to look and talk more like Will Rogers every day. The news feature followed right through to the disembarkation in London, all of it absorbing.

Incidentally, this isn't the first time Murrow has taken us on a trip. One of the best of the "See It Now" shows was a film of a trip on the Oriental Express from Paris to Istanbul. The London flight was, I thought, a better job of reporting largely because Murrow was on it, thus combining the glamor of a familiar figure with a documentary of the flight.

The same technique, I think, could be used for other features on travel which has been pretty badly neglected on television. A simple camera trip through, say, Rome, would be a prosaic affair. But just suppose the tour were conducted by one of Rome's better kown residents like Orson Welles who has lived there for years. Welles could show us not only the monuments and the ruins but also his favorite restaurants, his abode, his haunts, introduce us to his favorite people. It would add a very valuable human element to travelogues which have changed hardly at all since the days when my mother used to take me to listen to Burton Holmes.

I feel very strongly about this because, of all the period of our history, now is the time when it is most important for Americans to understand Europe. Television could do a lot toward bridging the gaps of our ignorance and our sympathy but it hasn't done so, largely because the techniques for so doing haven't been properly explored.

In regard to overseas understanding, the British have been much bolder than we have. For years now, the BBC has hired Clifton Utley, NBC's enormously capable Chicago commentator, to give a weekly news summary and explanation of America. The BBC, of course, also has a good many Britons covering America but it was felt that an American would provide an insight into the United States not open to the British.

Conversely, the BBC has for years tried to interest American networks in providing an opposite number, namely a Briton who would explain his country to us. So far there have been no takers, more's the pity.

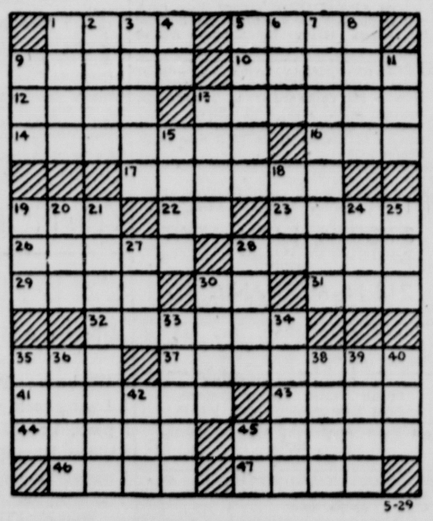
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

G Y H D S Y D X N U J L H J Q Y A J G Y H
X N J Q Q K A O Y M N, Y H O Q Z E E J Q
D L J Z U E K — W J U.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NOW THERE AROSE UP A NEW KING OVER EGYPT, WHICH KNEW NOT JOSEPH—EXODUS.

The Boeing Stratocruiser is a very large airplane and Murrow took us on a tour of it, showing the minute and exhaustive inspection of the airplane before takeoff, the bewildering array of gadgets, the food lockers. The camera was on the flight deck during the drama of the takeoff, which was a far more elaborate procedure than I suspected. And then Murrow roamed up the aisle and talked to a passenger about the motives for his trip.

Late at night, when the berths were made up and the lights out, he routed out another passenger, Hal Boyle of the Associated Press, an old war-time buddy of Murrow's who is beginning to look and talk more like Will Rogers every day. The news feature followed right through to the disembarkation in London, all of it absorbing.

Incidentally, this isn't the first time Murrow has taken us on a trip. One of the best of the "See It Now" shows was a film of a trip on the Oriental Express from Paris to Istanbul. The London flight was, I thought, a better job of reporting largely because Murrow was on it, thus combining the glamor of a familiar figure with a documentary of the flight.

The same technique, I think, could be used for other features on travel which has been pretty badly neglected on television. A simple camera trip through, say, Rome, would be a prosaic affair. But just suppose the tour were conducted by one of Rome's better kown residents like Orson Welles who has lived there for years. Welles could show us not only the monuments and the ruins but also his favorite restaurants, his abode, his haunts, introduce us to his favorite people. It would add a very valuable human element to travelogues which have changed hardly at all since the days when my mother used to take me to listen to Burton Holmes.

I feel very strongly about this because, of all the period of our history, now is the time when it is most important for Americans to understand Europe. Television could do a lot toward bridging the gaps of our ignorance and our sympathy but it hasn't done so, largely because the techniques for so doing haven't been properly explored.

In regard to overseas understanding, the British have been much bolder than we have. For years now, the BBC has hired Clifton Utley, NBC's enormously capable Chicago commentator, to give a weekly news summary and explanation of America. The BBC, of course, also has a good many Britons covering America but it was felt that an American would provide an insight into the United States not open to the British.

Conversely, the BBC has for years tried to interest American networks in providing an opposite number, namely a Briton who would explain his country to us. So far there have been no takers, more's the pity.

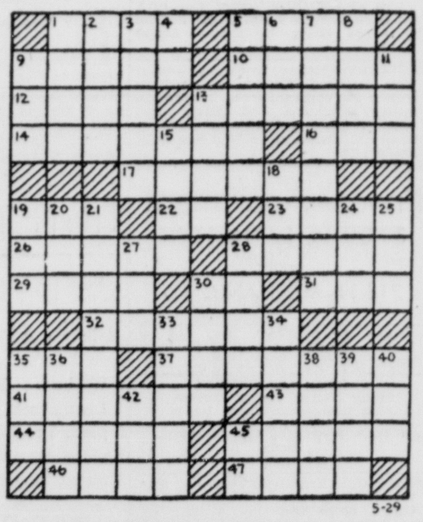
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

G Y H D S Y D X N U J L H J Q Y A J G Y H
X N J Q Q K A O Y M N, Y H O Q Z E E J Q
D L J Z U E K — W J U.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NOW THERE AROSE UP A NEW KING OVER EGYPT, WHICH KNEW NOT JOSEPH—EXODUS.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved Mother, Elizabeth Ellen Eyler, who passed away May 29, 1945.
You heard a voice we cannot hear,
Which says you must not stay,
You saw a hand we cannot see,
Which beckoned you away.
Her daughters, VIRGINIA, MARGARET, ELIZABETH, MARIE and MARYLAND

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our dear son and brother, Private Ernest Leo Moore. We especially wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars, the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Rev. Seth Morrow.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved Mother, Elizabeth Ellen Eyler, who passed away May 29, 1945.
You heard a voice we cannot hear,
Which says you must not stay,
You saw a hand we cannot see,
Which beckoned you away.
Her daughters, VIRGINIA, MARGARET, ELIZABETH, MARIE and MARYLAND

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our dear son and brother, Private Ernest Leo Moore. We especially wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars, the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Rev. Seth Morrow.

EIGHT OF NINE GET SET

CAN YOU imagine a nine-table tournament deal on which only one declarer manages to make his contract? All of the others were set, on one recent freak hand, though the deal produced one or more contracts in each of the four suits. Either the North-South pair played it in a major suit at the level of small slam, or the opponents sacrificed at grand slam in a minor, believing the opposition could make its contract.

	♠ A K Q 10 9 3 2 ♥ 4 ♦ K 9 7 5 4 ♣ None
♠ J 8 7 6 ♥ 5 ♦ None ♣ K 9 6 2	N W E S	♠ None ♥ 10 9 8 5 ♦ A Q 8 3 ♣ Q 10 7 5 3
	♠ 4 ♥ A K Q J 7 6 3 2 ♦ None ♣ A J 8 4

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1. 1 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
6 ♦	Pass	6 ♥
2. 1 ♠	2 ♣	Dbl	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♥	5 ♣
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♥	7 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl
3. 4 ♠	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

Those are just one-third of the different bidding sequences on this crazy tournament deal. Every remaining one was different, including that where East decided to bid both minors and mentioned his diamonds first. At that table he wound up in a grand slam at diamonds, meant as a sacrifice. There was even one case in which East made an informatory double of North's spades and West broke in over South's high heart bid with a call of diamonds, so that there West was a 7-Diamonds declarer.

Of those nine contracts, the only one made was 6-Hearts where West led the K of his partner's clubs. After the A won, a club and a diamond were ruffed, four hearts cleared trumps and spades gave South two club discards, so that he lost no tricks. A spade lead could have ruined that declarer, just as a heart lead wrecked all of the spade declarers.

Don't try to rationalize any particular bidding as the best on such a deal. All fine players would agree that one guess is almost as good as another on such a monstrosity, as the result depends on factors which can be neither seen nor deduced.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the Complainant from the Respondent A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The Bill states that the parties were married in Somerset, Pennsylvania, on October 21, 1925; that they lived together until December, 1928, on which date the Respondent abandoned and deserted the Complainant; that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly down to the present time, is deliberate and final, and beyond hope of reconciliation.

It is thereupon, this 28th day of May, 1953, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the Complainant causes this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for four weeks before the 29th day of June, 1953, giving notice to the said George Lloyd Keith, absent Respondent, of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of July, 1953, and show cause, if any he has, why a Decree ought not be passed as prayed.

EIGHT OF NINE GET SET

CAN YOU imagine a nine-table tournament deal on which only one declarer manages to make his contract? All of the others were set, on one recent freak hand, though the deal produced one or more contracts in each of the four suits. Either the North-South pair played it in a major suit at the level of small slam, or the opponents sacrificed at grand slam in a minor, believing the opposition could make its contract.

	♠ A K Q 10 9 3 2 ♥ 4 ♦ K 9 7 5 4 ♣ None
♠ J 8 7 6 ♥ 5 ♦ None ♣ K 9 6 2	N W E S	♠ None ♥ 10 9 8 5 ♦ A Q 8 3 ♣ Q 10 7 5 3
	♠ 4 ♥ A K Q J 7 6 3 2 ♦ None ♣ A J 8 4

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1. 1 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	5 ♥	Pass

2. 1 ♠	2 ♣	Dbl	Pass

5 ♦	Pass	6 ♥	7 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl
3. 4 ♠	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

Those are just one-third of the different bidding sequences on this crazy tournament deal. Every remaining one was different, including that where East decided to bid both minors and mentioned his diamonds first. At that table he wound up in a grand slam at diamonds, meant as a sacrifice. There was even one case in which East made an informatory double of North's spades and West broke in over South's high heart bid with a call of diamonds, so that there West was a 7-Diamonds declarer.

Of those nine contracts, the only one made was 6-Hearts where West led the K of his partner's clubs. After the A won, a club and a diamond were ruffed, four hearts cleared trumps and spades gave South two club discards, so that he lost no tricks. A spade lead could have ruined that declarer, just as a heart lead wrecked all of the spade declarers.

Don't try to rationalize any particular bidding as the best on such a deal. All fine players would agree that one guess is almost as good as another on such a monstrosity, as the result depends on factors which can be neither seen nor deduced.

If North eventually reaches 4-Diamonds, West having made a heart overcall on his second turn, should East double it?

23 Top Prizes Given Ridgeley High Graduates

Simpson, Miss Shahan Get Citizenship Awards

William Frederick Simpson and Margaret Virginia Shahan were presented the Ridgeley Lions Club Citizenship Awards last night at the 19th annual commencement of Ridgeley High School in the school auditorium.

Perry Davis, Ridgeley Lions Club president, presented citizenship pins to the two winners in the class of 43 graduates. Their names also will be inscribed on a plaque. This is the seventh year for the award.

Melvin M. Heiskell, school principal, announced 23 awards distributed among 12 outstanding members of the 1953 graduating class at the commencement.

New Memorial

Special sentiment was attached to the Lelia Swadley Memorial Award which was given to Frances Marie Phillips. Lelia Swadley, who would have been a member of the 1953 Ridgeley graduating class, was killed last June 14 in a freak accident on Dingle Hill while returning from Girls' State at Jackson's Mill, W. Va.

The Tri-Hi-Y Club and Raymond G. Swadley, the girl's father, decided to establish a 10-year plaque and present an annual award to the senior girl each year who most nearly typifies the Girls' State ideal. Besides winning this award Miss Phillips also received one of the four honor point medals for extracurricular activities and a cheerleader award offered by the school for the first time. Another cheerleader prize went to Loretta May Phillips.

Wins Three Awards

For being the class valedictorian, Patricia Ann Brinkman also was the recipient of three awards. The school gave her a pin and she also won the Josten's medal for scholarship and the Reader's Digest award.

Mary Jane Brant, the class salutatorian, was given two prizes. One was a pin from the school and the other was a Josten's medal as an honor student.

Jo Ann Yvonne Dixon won the school activities medal with 104½ points, having been the highest in her class in activity points in five of six years at the Ridgeley School. Other honor point medal winners were Frances Marie Phillips, Margaret Virginia Shahan and Shirley Ann Kelso. Miss Kelso also got the Student Council pin as president during the past year.

Literary Prizes

Four students were awarded prizes for literary activities. Louie Anthony Margherita and Thomas Melvin Morris got their pins for debating, Miss Dixon for oration and Mary Lynn Baker for interpretation of prose literature.

The two debate winners also were the recipients of sportsmanship awards. Morris was presented a wrist watch for winning the Paul K. Morgan Scholarship Award. Margherita was presented a trophy emblematic of the American Legion Memorial Sportsmanship Award, which was presented by William McCullough of the Ridgeley post.

The Babe Ruth Sportsmanship Awards were presented to Pasquale Marion DeMay and Loretta May Phillips for having made the greatest contribution to the spirit of sportsmanship and fair play during their senior year.

Maurice Brooks, professor of wildlife management at West Virginia University, was the principal speaker at last night's commencement. His topic was "Mountains and Mountaineers."

Potomac Edison System, Which Got Start In Maryland, Observing 100th Birthday

From its humble start at Frederick in 1853, the Potomac Edison System, observing its 100th birthday this month, has grown into a service organization supplying electricity to over 137,000 customers in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

One hundred years ago this month, the now extinct Isabella Gas Works was incorporated to manufacture gas and to distribute it throughout Frederick. With this small beginning and its "35 iron posts, the cost and erection of which is not to exceed $19 each," the Potomac Edison System grew steadily each year as the demand for utility service expanded.

Small companies, many of which were originally formed to supply electricity for railroads, consolidated their facilities so as to secure the utmost economy and operating efficiency. The present PE System is a result of these mergers. Actually, there are 175 companies now consolidated in the Potomac Edison System: 109 were electric organizations, 24 were railroads, three were gas and three were water companies.

The right to use the name "Edison" in the utility company's title was secured from the Thomas A. Edison organization in 1884. It was formerly used in such ways as "The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Cumberland," but was first used and incorporated as "The Potomac Edison Company" in 1923.

From the original "35 iron posts," the PE System has grown to an organization able to supply 265 thousand kilowatts, an organization that pays over four million dollars in taxes each year, and an organization that offers appliance sales, bus transportation, and the services of many electrical experts including specialists in the fields of farming, air conditioning, home and commercial lighting, home service and industrial power and heating.

9-Year-Old Boy Starts Fire After Ransacking Auto

A nine-year-old local boy was picked up by city police yesterday evening for allegedly setting off a fire and ransacking an automobile.

He was taken to the Detention Home at the Allegany County Infirmary and will be given a hearing today in Juvenile Court.

Patrolman Gordon Hite noticed a fire burning in a building now under construction on North George Street and belonging to Paul Roeder. He extinguished the blaze and later found a boy nearby and while questioning him noticed the boy had several packs of cigarets in his possession.

The boy later admitted emptying some sacks of nails and setting off the fire. It was reported expensive equipment had just been installed in the building. Police later learned the boy had ransacked an auto belonging to Clyde S. Kuhns which was parked in the alley near Rosenbaum's. About six packs of cigarettes had been taken, police said.

City police detective Roy Hawe took the boy to the Detention Home pending the hearing. The boy was also reported suspected of taking a sum of money from a man at Central YMCA.

Airline Plans To Promote Use Of Service Here

Official Meets With Group At Luncheon

Continued air service and the addition of one westbound flight daily during the Daylight Saving Time period were assured Cumberland yesterday by Allegheny Airlines.

David L. Miller, vice president, traffic and sales, for the airline, gave these assurances at a luncheon at the Cumberland Country Club yesterday for city officials, the Chamber of Commerce and other interested parties.

He suggested, too, that the airline and the City of Cumberland join in a promotion effort to benefit each other. It is anticipated that the Airport Commission will meet shortly to discuss what steps it can take in this connection.

Miller told his guests, "There is no further plan to suspend service at Cumberland," and referred briefly to Civil Aeronautics Board hearings held in the past year on that subject.

He pointed out that the airline must become more and more self-sufficient and added that the present routing of flights to Cumberland costs in the neighborhood of $100,000 a year.

In an economy move estimated to cost $75,000 a year less, flights to Cumberland by way of Connellsville, Pa., will be eliminated effective June 9, and Cumberland service will be by way of Altoona and Johnstown, Pa.

On the basis of new scheduling, there will be two westbound flights, one arriving at Cumberland at 9:14 a. m. and the other at 6:44 p. m., arriving at Pittsburgh at 10:48 a. m. and 8:08 p. m., respectively. However, after the Daylight Saving Time period ends, it is likely that the late afternoon flight will be dropped. One eastbound flight remains on the schedule, arriving in Cumberland at 10:40 a. m. and in Washington at 11:47 a. m.

Miller said he is aware of Cumberland's program to develop new industry and pointed out that the airline is interested in helping the city and he hopes the city will help promote the airline.

Miller complimented the city and the Chamber of Commerce on the "very able case" they presented to the CAB in their successful effort to retain air service here.

Keyser Seniors Get Advice From Senator Neely

United States Senator Matthew B. Neely (D-W.Va.) last night told the 86 graduates of Keyser High School that they should not be like Alexander The Great who worried because he had no worlds to conquer.

Neely told the seniors, their friends and relatives who jammed the Keyser High School auditorium that they face many opportunities in the years that lie ahead. Rather than waging destructive war, they should crusade against disease and insect pests and should work toward a lasting peace.

"If any of you graduates comes up with a formula on how to end unemployment you will become famous," the West Virginia senator concluded.

Diplomas were presented to the 86 graduates by Richard E. Romig, a member of the Mineral County Board of Education. The class was presented to him by Fred T. Clark, a Keyser High School teacher who sponsored the group.

The Keyser High School band offered several selections. Paul Boehmes, a member of the graduating class, sang "The Lord's Prayer," and Harold Goff and Thomas Rotruck played a trumpet duet.

Rev. Robert L. Bridgers, pastor of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

PSC Approves Gas Merger

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP)—The Maryland Public Service Commission today gave its approval for Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. of Pittsburgh to absorb the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co.

The two subsidiaries of the big Columbia Gas System Inc. already have received authority for their consolidation from the Federal Power Commission and the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission. They still need the approval of the West Virginia Public Service Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Cumberland and Allegheny operates in West Virginia and Maryland, with most of its 20,000 customers in Cumberland, Md. and eight nearby communities in Maryland's two Western counties.

John H. Hessey, chairman of the Maryland regulating agency, announced approval of the consolidation.

Hessey said the plan, "without apparent detriment to the public," may enable the two companies to effect slight reductions in operating costs and will simplify Columbia's corporate setup.

Manufacturers and Cumberland have the same general offices, same management, and share some employes.

Kenneth M. Redinger, assistant treasurer of both firms, testified there would be considerable savings in bookkeeping and administration.

First Jury Sets $1,700 Verdict In Condemnation

Dispute Involves Roadside Land

The first jury verdict during the current term of Allegany County Circuit Court, which began April 6, resulted yesterday in an award of $1,700 to Arthur G. Clise and Cecelia M. Clise in a condemnation case.

During the course of the trial, jurors, Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the trial; court attaches and contesting attorneys boarded a bus to visit the scene along State Route 55, between Vale Summit and Miller, where the State Roads Commission desires seven-eighths of an acre of the Clises land.

The commission, through Attorneys William C. Walsh and F. A. Puderbaugh, argued that $350 was a fair value for the land. James B. Reinhart, local real estate man, testified that all of the Clises property was worth about $2,750 and the portion sought by condemnation is worth $318. The commission had deposited a check for $350 with Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, as a reasonable price for the property.

On the other hand, Attorneys Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., representing the Clises, argued that the tract was worth $6,000 and the part sought by the State Roads Commission was valued at $2,000.

Included in the 11-member jury which deliberated about 40 minutes before reaching a verdict were Mack M. Patterson, foreman; Ethel I. Creighton, George J. Rossworm, Margaret V. Gornall, John Bradley, Bessie B. Rizer, George E. Kemp, Ernest Taschenberg, John S. Storer, Josephine F. Rodenhauser and Margaret Sachs.

District Forest Fire Record Much Improved

Only 13 Blazes Listed This Spring

When full-time employes of the State Department of Forests and Parks come to Herrington Manor in Garrett County for a three-day fire training meeting, starting Monday, they will travel to a section which has amassed an outstanding record in forest fire control this spring.

District Forester William H. Johnson noted yesterday that there have been only 13 forest fires in the four-county Western Maryland district this spring and they have burned over only 57½ acres.

Nine of these blazes and 48 acres were attributed to Frederick County, which had less rainfall during the fire danger season than the rest of the district. Allegany County had two fires, burning a total of five acres. Garrett County had just one, which harmed one acre and Washington County's one fire burned three-and-one half acres.

Last year, during the corresponding months of March, April and May, there were 38 forest fires in the four counties and they burned over 326 and one-twelfth acres.

These were the 1952 totals:

Garrett County, 15 fires, 279 acres burned; Allegany, four and 14¾ acres; Washington, seven and 18 ⅓ acres; Frederick, 12 and 14 acres.

Johnson observed that beginning Monday, the state regulation prohibiting brush burning before 4 p. m. will no longer be effective. That prevails during March, April and May. However, a 10-foot line around a burning operation still will be required. It also will be necessary for brush burners to keep sufficient manpower and tools on the scene until the fire is completely out.

The forester also had a word of caution for Memorial Day pleasure seekers. Be sure that all campfires are drowned before departure, he urged.

Acid Fumes Cause Huge Billowy White Haze Over City

Leaking fumes from a tank car of sulphuric acid in the westbound yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in South Cumberland yesterday evening resulted in a billowy white haze appearing over that section of the city.

City firemen from Central Fire Station went to the scene at 7:49 p. m. and it was reported the car had been located in the rear of 130 Wineow Street where the fumes were most heavily concentrated.

Apparently a shifter in the yards hit the car too hard causing the leak. As the leaking liquid was exposed to the air the billowy haze resulted, and a pungent odor was also noticeable, firemen said.

The car was reported to have been moved from the westbound to the eastbound yards to get the fumes from the city, and attempt made to remedy the leak. Many people thought a large fire was raging.

Weather

Yesterday the weather was pretty nice although it was a bit breezy during the afternoon. Cumberlanders can look forward to another fair day with the mercury expected to again go into the 70's today. High temperature yesterday at Constitution Park was 69, low, 47 and at 8:30 p. m. the reading was 59 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 34.6 per cent.

New Gas Tax, Auto Laws Effective Sunday Midnight

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP)—This week end will probably be your last chance to buy gasoline at present prices in Maryland.

The state's new penny-a-gallon increase in gas taxes will go into effect as of midnight Sunday, and it's expected to be passed promptly down the line to motorists.

The increase, from 5 to 6 cents on the gallon, was voted by the last Legislature. It puts Maryland on a par with Virginia's six-cent gasoline tax and once again gives District of Columbia stations a one-penny edge. The District tax was boosted from 4 to 5 cents last year.

Other new laws affecting Maryland motorists and going into force next week include those which:

1. Raise the amounts of financial responsibility that a motorist must show in case of major accidents from $5,000, $10,000 and $1,000 to $10,000, $20,000 and $5,000.

2. Cut speed limits of trucks of a gross weight of 7,500 pounds or more to 10 miles an hour less than the lawful speed for other vehicles in areas where the limit is over 35 miles an hour.

3. Require vehicles moving slower than 10 miles an hour under the posted speed limit to drive on the extreme right side of the road, or of the shoulder or extension where they are provided.

4. Permit use of radar records as evidence in speeding cases where highways are clearly posted within four miles of where the radar device is located.

5. Lengthen the duration of instruction and examination licenses from 30 to 60 days. (Thirty-day licenses issued before Monday will expire 30 days from the date of issue).

6. Impose new restrictions on markings and movements of vehicles carrying explosives and provide 90-day license suspensions for persons convicted of moving violations in such vehicles.

7. Increase from $50 to $250 the maximum fine for throwing or dumping trash, junk or other litter on public highways—or on the property without his written permission.

8. Permit non-working, non-resident students at accredited schools, colleges and universities to display license plates of their home states if those states allow students from Maryland the same privilege.

Other new motor vehicle laws going into effect June 1 apply to tow-trucks, to Maryland residents moving to other states after an accident, to fueling of school buses (children must not be aboard), to duplicate registration cards and certified copies of records, and to the new dump service and semi-dump trailer service registrations authorized in the new roads bill.

Persons who are unable to read English no longer will be able to get restricted driving licenses. To get a license, they'll at least have to be able to understand warning and direction signals written in English.

Also going into effect is the law boosting from $50 to $75 the minimum amount of damage in an accident which requires a written report of the motorist to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Accidents affected by the increased amounts of financial responsibility a motorist must show include: manslaughter or negligent homicide; drunken driving; a felony involving use of a motor vehicle; failure to stop after an accident causing injury or death; turning off lights to avoid identification and perjury under laws relating to ownership or operation of motor vehicles.

The former financial responsibility limits of $5,000, $19,000 and $1,000 still apply to minor violations.

Election Board Takes Office

The three members of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors are shown as they received their oath of office for two-year terms beginning June 1. Administering the oath is Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court. The three board members, left to right, are Matthew J. Mullaney, Victor M. Hebb and William A. Wilson, chairman. Mullaney, a Democrat, is a new board member. Hebb and Wilson, both Republicans, were reappointed for new terms.

Va.

The Tri-Hi-Y Club and Raymond G. Swadley, the girl's father, decided to establish a 10-year plaque and present an annual award to the senior girl each year who most nearly typifies the Girls' State ideal. Besides winning this award Miss Phillips also received one of the four honor point medals for extracurricular activities and a cheerleader award offered by the school for the first time. Another cheerleader prize went to Loretta May Phillips.

Other honor point medal winners were Frances Marie Phillips, Margaret Virginia Shahan and Shirley Ann Kelso. Miss Kelso also got the Student Council pin as president during the past year.

Literary Prizes

Four students were awarded prizes for literary activities. Louie Anthony Margherita and Thomas Melvin Morris got their pins for debating, Miss Dixon for oration and Mary Lynn Baker for interpretation of prose literature.

The two debate winners also were the recipients of sportsmanship awards. Morris was presented a wrist watch for winning the Paul K. Morgan Scholarship Award. On the basis of new scheduling, there will be two westbound flights, one arriving at Cumberland at 9:14 a. m. and the other at 6:44 p. m., arriving at Pittsburgh at 10:48 a. m. and 8:08 p. m., respectively. However, after the Daylight Saving Time period ends, it is likely that the late afternoon flight will be dropped. One eastbound flight remains on the schedule, arriving in Cumberland at 10:40 a. m. and in Washington at 11:47 a. m.

Miller said he is aware of Cumberland's program to develop new industry and pointed out that the airline is interested in helping the city and he hopes the city will help promote the airline.

Miller complimented the city and the Chamber of Commerce on the "very able case" they presented to the CAB in their successful effort to retain air service here.

PSC Approves Gas Merger

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP)—The Maryland Public Service Commission today gave its approval for Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. of Pittsburgh to absorb the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co.

The two subsidiaries of the big Columbia Gas System Inc. already have received authority for their consolidation from the Federal Power Commission and the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission. They still need the approval of the West Virginia Public Service Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Cumberland and Allegheny operates in West Virginia and Maryland, with most of its 20,000 customers in Cumberland, Md. and eight nearby communities in Maryland's two Western counties.

John H. Hessey, chairman of the Maryland regulating agency, announced approval of the consolidation.

Hessey said the plan, "without apparent detriment to the public," may enable the two companies to effect slight reductions in operating costs and will simplify Columbia's corporate setup.

Manufacturers and Cumberland have the same general offices, same management, and share some employes.

Kenneth M. Redinger, assistant treasurer of both firms, testified there would be considerable savings in bookkeeping and administration.

First Jury Sets $1,700 Verdict In Condemnation

Dispute Involves Roadside Land

The first jury verdict during the current term of Allegany County Circuit Court, which began April 6, resulted yesterday in an award of $1,700 to Arthur G. Clise and Cecelia M. Clise in a condemnation case.

During the course of the trial, jurors, Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the trial; court attaches and contesting attorneys boarded a bus to visit the scene along State Route 55, between Vale Summit and Miller, where the State Roads Commission desires seven-eighths of an acre of the Clises land.

The commission, through Attorneys William C. Walsh and F. A. Puderbaugh, argued that $350 was a fair value for the land. James B. Reinhart, local real estate man, testified that all of the Clises property was worth about $2,750 and the portion sought by condemnation is worth $318. The commission had deposited a check for $350 with Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, as a reasonable price for the property.

On the other hand, Attorneys Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., representing the Clises, argued that the tract was worth $6,000 and the part sought by the State Roads Commission was valued at $2,000.

Included in the 11-member jury which deliberated about 40 minutes before reaching a verdict were Mack M. Patterson, foreman; Ethel I. Creighton, George J. Rossworm, Margaret V. Gornall, John Bradley, Bessie B. Rizer, George E. Kemp, Ernest Taschenberg, John S. Storer, Josephine F. Rodenhauser and Margaret Sachs.

District Forest Fire Record Much Improved

Only 13 Blazes Listed This Spring

When full-time employes of the State Department of Forests and Parks come to Herrington Manor in Garrett County for a three-day fire training meeting, starting Monday, they will travel to a section which has amassed an outstanding record in forest fire control this spring.

District Forester William H. Johnson noted yesterday that there have been only 13 forest fires in the four-county Western Maryland district this spring and they have burned over only 57½ acres.

Nine of these blazes and 48 acres were attributed to Frederick County, which had less rainfall during the fire danger season than the rest of the district. Allegany County had two fires, burning a total of five acres. Garrett County had just one, which harmed one acre and Washington County's one fire burned three-and-one half acres.

Last year, during the corresponding months of March, April and May, there were 38 forest fires in the four counties and they burned over 326 and one-twelfth acres.

These were the 1952 totals:

Garrett County, 15 fires, 279 acres burned; Allegany, four and 14¾ acres; Washington, seven and 18 ⅓ acres; Frederick, 12 and 14 acres.

Johnson observed that beginning Monday, the state regulation prohibiting brush burning before 4 p. m. will no longer be effective. That prevails during March, April and May. However, a 10-foot line around a burning operation still will be required. It also will be necessary for brush burners to keep sufficient manpower and tools on the scene until the fire is completely out.

The forester also had a word of caution for Memorial Day pleasure seekers. Be sure that all campfires are drowned before departure, he urged.

Acid Fumes Cause Huge Billowy White Haze Over City

Leaking fumes from a tank car of sulphuric acid in the westbound yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in South Cumberland yesterday evening resulted in a billowy white haze appearing over that section of the city.

City firemen from Central Fire Station went to the scene at 7:49 p. m. and it was reported the car had been located in the rear of 130 Wineow Street where the fumes were most heavily concentrated.

Apparently a shifter in the yards hit the car too hard causing the leak. As the leaking liquid was exposed to the air the billowy haze resulted, and a pungent odor was also noticeable, firemen said.

The car was reported to have been moved from the westbound to the eastbound yards to get the fumes from the city, and attempt made to remedy the leak. Many people thought a large fire was raging.

Weather

Yesterday the weather was pretty nice although it was a bit breezy during the afternoon. Cumberlanders can look forward to another fair day with the mercury expected to again go into the 70's today. High temperature yesterday at Constitution Park was 69, low, 47 and at 8:30 p. m. the reading was 59 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 34.6 per cent.

New Gas Tax, Auto Laws Effective Sunday Midnight

BALTIMORE, May 28 (AP)—This week end will probably be your last chance to buy gasoline at present prices in Maryland.

The state's new penny-a-gallon increase in gas taxes will go into effect as of midnight Sunday, and it's expected to be passed promptly down the line to motorists.

The increase, from 5 to 6 cents on the gallon, was voted by the last Legislature. It puts Maryland on a par with Virginia's six-cent gasoline tax and once again gives District of Columbia stations a one-penny edge. The District tax was boosted from 4 to 5 cents last year.

Other new laws affecting Maryland motorists and going into force next week include those which:

1. Raise the amounts of financial responsibility that a motorist must show in case of major accidents from $5,000, $10,000 and $1,000 to $10,000, $20,000 and $5,000.

2. Cut speed limits of trucks of a gross weight of 7,500 pounds or more to 10 miles an hour less than the lawful speed for other vehicles in areas where the limit is over 35 miles an hour.

3. Require vehicles moving slower than 10 miles an hour under the posted speed limit to drive on the extreme right side of the road, or of the shoulder or extension where they are provided.

4. Permit use of radar records as evidence in speeding cases where highways are clearly posted within four miles of where the radar device is located.

5. Lengthen the duration of instruction and examination licenses from 30 to 60 days. (Thirty-day licenses issued before Monday will expire 30 days from the date of issue).

6. Impose new restrictions on markings and movements of vehicles carrying explosives and provide 90-day license suspensions for persons convicted of moving violations in such vehicles.

7. Increase from $50 to $250 the maximum fine for throwing or dumping trash, junk or other litter on public highways—or on the property without his written permission.

8. Permit non-working, non-resident students at accredited schools, colleges and universities to display license plates of their home states if those states allow students from Maryland the same privilege.

Other new motor vehicle laws going into effect June 1 apply to tow-trucks, to Maryland residents moving to other states after an accident, to fueling of school buses (children must not be aboard), to duplicate registration cards and certified copies of records, and to the new dump service and semi-dump trailer service registrations authorized in the new roads bill.

Persons who are unable to read English no longer will be able to get restricted driving licenses. To get a license, they'll at least have to be able to understand warning and direction signals written in English.

Also going into effect is the law boosting from $50 to $75 the minimum amount of damage in an accident which requires a written report of the motorist to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Accidents affected by the increased amounts of financial responsibility a motorist must show include: manslaughter or negligent homicide; drunken driving; a felony involving use of a motor vehicle; failure to stop after an accident causing injury or death; turning off lights to avoid identification and perjury under laws relating to ownership or operation of motor vehicles.

The former financial responsibility limits of $5,000, $10,000 and $1,000 still apply to minor violations.

Election Board Takes Office

The three members of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors are shown as they received their oath of office for two-year terms beginning June 1. Administering the oath is Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court. The three board members, left to right, are Matthew J. Mullaney, Victor M. Hebb and William A. Wilson, chairman. Mullaney, a Democrat, is a new board member. Hebb and Wilson, both Republicans, were reappointed for new terms.
